OBY (or OWBY) is a parish, 3 miles from Martham station on the Eastern and Midlands railway, 15 miles north-east from Norwich and 10 north-west from Yarmouth, in the Northern division of the county, incorporated hundreds and union of East and West Flegg, and Great Yarmouth county court district. Here is a churchyard, but there is no church; the inhabitants attend the church at Thurne. The living is consolidated with those of Thurne and Ashby, joint yearly value £690, with residence here and 23 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich and held since 1873 by the Rev. William Cufaude Davie M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The rent of 2A. 2R. 30P. of land (£6 yearly), is distributed two-thirds to the poor and one-third to the church. Roger Bigot, Earl of Norfolk (1234-1270), an ancestor of the Duke of Norfolk, was lord of this manor. John Wiseman, who is lord of the manor, and T. Wyndham Cremer (lord of the manor of Owby with Thurne), C. W. Millard, the Harmer family, John Christmas, the Rev. H. J. Muskett, and James Littlewood esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, sand and clay. The area is 1,408 acres, inclusive of Ashby; rateable value with Ashby, £2,550; and the population is given with Ashby.——Letters through Yarmouth. ORMESBY ST. MARGARET (or Great ORMESBY) with SCRATBY, is a village and parish, and a polling-place for the Northern division of the county, and a station on the Eastern and Midlands railway, about 1 mile from the sea, and 5 north-by-west from Yarmouth, in the incorporated hundreds and union of East and West Flegg, county court district of Great Yarmouth, rural deanery of Flegg, and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. There were formerly five churches in the united parishes, three of which—viz. All Saints, at Scratby, Holy Trinity, and St. Peter's, between the two Ormesbys—have long been in ruins. The parish church of Ormesby St. Margaret, is an ancient flint and stone building, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, with a fine square tower, surmounted by the figures of four monks in lieu of pinnacles and a vestry; it was enlarged in 1867 by the addition of a north aisle, the old pews and gallery were removed, the whole area seated with open oak benches, and a handsome pulpit and desk erected; more than 100 sittings were added, making in all, 224 free seats: this was done at an expense of more than £1,000: the chancel was also re-roofed and handsomely restored, and a new vestry built, at the expense of Sir E. H. K. Lacon bart. M.P.: the church contains several brasses and memorials to the families of Clere (one of these, the Lady Alice Clere, was aunt of Anne Boleyn), Symonds and the Earl of Home. The register dates from the year 1677. The livings of Ormesby St. Margaret, consolidated with Scratby and Ormesby St. Michael, are vicarages, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Norwich, joint yearly value £450, held since 1866 by the Rev. Robert Singleton Blofeld M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge J.P. A vicarage house, in the Early English style, built of cut flint and stone, was erected in 1867. Here are Baptist and Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Wesleyan chapel (which is in connection with the Yarmouth circuit) is a Gothic structure, erected at a cost of £400. The poor of the parish have six chaldrons of coals yearly from Sir E. H. K. Lacon bart. in consideration of a road and two pieces of waste land which his family were allowed to enclose. The Dowager Lady Lacon left a legacy of £1,000, the interest to be for the benefit of the poor of Ormesby St. Margaret and Scratby for ever. Ormesby House, the seat of Sir Edmund Henry Knowles Lacon bart. M.A. cantab., M.P. D.L., J.P. is a handsome Gothic mansion, standing in well-wooded grounds. Sir E. H. K. Lacon bart. is lessee of the rectorial tithes under the Dean and Chapter of Norwich. Scratby Hall, the seat of Robert Arthur Watling esq. is a handsome mansion, and was formerly the seat of the Earl of Home. The site of the family mansion of the Cleres is now occupied by a farmhouse, and only one arch of the ancient structure remains. The Rev. Charles Lucas is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Sir E. H. K. Lacon bart. M.P. the Rev. Charles Lucas, Robert Arthur Watling esq. George Morris Beck esq. and Mrs. Moore. The soil is mixed; subsoil, sand and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, and oats. The population of Ormesby St. Margaret (including Scratby) in 1881 was 1,125. The area of the two is 1,600 acres; rateable value, £5,327.

LITTLE OUSE, 6 miles north-north-east from Littleport station and  $10\frac{1}{2}$  south-east from Downham, is an ecclesiastical parish, formed from detached and outlying portions of the parishes of Hilgay, Feltham St. Mary and St. Nicholas, Littleport (Cambridge) and the entire parishes of Feltham Anchor and Redmore, both formerly extra-parochial, by Order in Council, in 1866. It is in the rural deanery and diocese of Ely and the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church of St. John is in the Early English style, of flint, with stone dressings, having chancel, nave, vestry, organ chamber and tower with bells and clock, and was built at the sole expense of the late Rev. Canon E. B. Sparke: it is situated on the south bank of the Little Ouse river, about 2 miles above its confluence with the Great Ouse. The register dates from the year 1868. The living is a vicarage, value about £300 yearly, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely and held since 1882 by the Rev. John Frederick Taylor Morse B.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The vicarage house, adjoining the church, is a substantial building of red brick. Here are two chapels for Primitive Methodists. There is an iron foot bridge over the river. On the Cold Harbour Drove there is a mission room, and the vicar holds services here on Sunday evenings. The principal landowners are E. Clough Newcombe, the trustees of Joseph Little and William Luddington, James Luddington and Henry Tansley Luddington esqrs. The soil is peat and sand; subsoil, clay and gravel. Chief crops, wheat, beans, oats and roots. The area is 12,042 acres; and the population in 1881 was 921.

OUTWELL is a village and parish partly in Cambridgeshire, but principally in Norfolk, the navigable river Nene passing through it and dividing the counties; it is 6 miles west from Downham station, 6 south-east from Wisbech, and  $3\frac{1}{2}$  south from Emneth station, in the hundred of Clackclose, union and county court district of Wisbech, rural deanery of Fincham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The tramway line from Wisbech is working to Outwell Basin station. The church of St. Clement, in the Early English style, is a brick building cemented over, having a chancel, nave, aisles, tower with 6 bells and porch: the interior has been repaired at a cost of £2,200. The register dates from about 1680. The living is a rectory, yearly value £631, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich and held since 1871 by the Rev. John George Briscoe, of St. Aidans. Here are Wesleyan, United Methodist Free Church and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities consist of the town lands and town ten lands (now amalgamated) and Lynne's charity, left in 1816: the Town Ten Lands, or Norfolk Side allotments of 12 acres, are let in half acres to the most deserving poor, at rents of 30s. per half acre: the Town Lands of nine acres are let upon the same terms as the Town Ten Lands: the remainder of the town lands consists of 26A. 0R. 5P. producing a gross rental of £69. The income from these lands is disposed of in the following manner:—£10 to the repair of the fabric of the parish church; a sum not exceeding £25 for general parochial purposes, which includes repairs to engine house and fire engine, and about 50 stone of bread, distributed annually on the 6th of January; after the above payments the trustees pay the balance to the managers of the National and Infant schools. Lynne's charity of 9A. 0R. 7P. producing £23, is distributed in flour to poor persons resident in Outwell (Norfolk). The Great Eastern Company requiring a portion of the Isle Side allotments, consisting of 15 perches, for their tramway from Wisbech to Upwell, paid the trustees £100 as compensation &c.; this money has been re-invested in the purchase of 1A. 2R. 15P. of arable land in Upwell. All these charities are controlled by a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, which came into force on the 31st January, 1880. Near the church once stood a hermitage, dedicated to St. Christopher. Outwell possesses a fire engine, which is manned by volunteers, and supported by voluntary contributions; the keys of the engine house are kept by Mr. William Stafford. Charles W. Townley esq. is lord of the manor, and, with H. H. Allenby, H. Dawbarn and Arthur W. Healy esqrs. chief landowners. The soil is loamy; the subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and potatoes. The population in 1881 of the portion in Cambridgeshire was 343; acreage 552; rateable value, £1,346; the portion in Norfolk, population, 869; acreage, 2,512; rateable value, £4,380.

OVERSTRAND is a parish situated on the coast, 2 miles south-east from Cromer station, and 8 from North Walsham station, in the Northern division of the county, North Erpingham hundred, Erpingham union, county court district of Holt, rural deanery of Repps, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. This parish is bounded on the south by a range of hills and on the north by the sea. The old church was swallowed up by the sea in the reign of Richard II. when a second church, dedicated to St. Martin, was erected, but that is now in ruins: a church was built and consecrated in 1867, and named Christ Church: it is in the Early English style, of cut flint and stone, and consists of chancel, nave and north aisle. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, yearly nett value about £60, in the gift of John Henry Gurney esq. and held since 1871 by the Rev. Forster George Simpson B.A. of St. Edmund Hall, Oxford, who is also rector of Sidstrand. £7,

OXBOROUGH is a parish, seated on the banks of a small stream running into the navigable Wissey,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  miles south-west from Swaffham station, in the Western division of the county, South Greenhoe hundred, Swaffham union and county court district, rural deanery of Cranwich, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. John the Evangelist is a large stone Gothic building consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, and square tower with a remarkably lofty spire rebuilt in 1877 (the previous one having been struck by lightning), and containing 6 bells: it has an altar-tomb under a marble Corinthian canopy, to Sir Henry Bedingfield, knight-marshal and constable of the Tower under Queen Mary, ob. 1583. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory with the vicarage of Foulden annexed, joint yearly value £720 with residence, in the gift of Caius College, Cambridge, and held since 1848 by the Rev. Alexander Thurtell M.A. formerly fellow and tutor of that college. Here is a Catholic chapel built in 1835, dedicated to Our Lady and St. Margaret: there is a resident priest. There are charities to the amount of £130, the principal of which are derived from 86 acres, the estate of Thomas Hewar, who in 1619 left it in trust to apply two-thirds for the relief of poor parishioners, and one-third

PENTNEY is a village and parish, 6½ miles north-west-by-north, from Swaffham, 8½ south-east-by-east from Lynn. The Narborough station (Lynn and Norwich line) stands in the parish, which is very scattered. Pentney is situated on the navigable river Nar, in the Western division of the county, hundred and union of Freebridge Lynn, county court district of Lynn, rural deanery of Lynn, and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Mary Magdalen is an ancient structure, mostly of flint, with later additions of stone in various styles, enlarged from a small Norman chapel with an apse; it now has chancel, nave, square tower, containing 1 bell and south porch, with sedilia, piscina and ambury: it was dependent on the Abbey of Pentney. The register dates from the year 1730. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £60, with residence, in the gift of the Rev. Edward F. E. Hankinson M.A. and held since 1875 by the Rev. John Samuel Broad M.A. of St. Edmund Hall, Oxford, who is also vicar of West Bilney. The Wesleyans have a handsome chapel here, and the General Baptists have a small chapel. The Town estate, of 50 acres (including the Fuel Allotment, adjoining the station), and other charities, about £75 yearly, are under the management of the vicar and churchwardens and two trustees appointed by the Charity Commissioners. About 2 miles west of the church was a priory of canons, of the order of St. Augustine, the fine gateway of which is still standing: between it and the church is the shaft of an elegant wayside cross. The Ketlam brook rises in Walton wood, runs through Pentney, and falls into the Nar. Captain Thackeray is lord of the manor of Ashwood, and owner of about one-fourth of the land; there are no other large properties, but the estates of Anthony Hamond esq. and Mr. Household run into this parish: many of the smaller properties are copyhold, fine certain: nearly all the land is tithe free. The soil is chiefly sand and gravel, but there is some heavy land; the four-course system of farming prevails; the drainage and water supply are good. Area, 2,293 acres; rateable value, £2,830; population in 1881 was 534.

PULHAM ST. MARY MAGDALEN (commonly called PULHAM MARKET) is a parish and small town and station on the Waveney Valley branch of the Great Eastern Railway, 15 miles south from Norwich, 4 north-by-west from Harleston and 104 from London, in the Southern division of the county, Earsham hundred, Depwade union, Harleston county court district, rural deanery of Redenhall, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Mary Magdalen is an old and handsome building, partly in the Perpendicular and partly in the Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, with a north porch and a square embattled tower, supported by buttresses at each corner, and containing 6 bells: in 1873 the church was restored and a vestry added, at a total cost of £1,800: at the same time a stained window was inserted, in memory of Mrs. Elizabeth Cole. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, yearly value £646 tithe rent-charge, in the gift of the Crown and held since 1870 by the Rev. Spencer Fellows M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge, J.P. The Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists have each a chapel. A Cemetery containing one acre adjoining the church was consecrated May 1st, 1860. There is also a cemetery for Nonconformists on Cole's Common, about 1½ miles from the church: the Cemeteries are under the control of a Burial Board. There are several charities, consisting of houses and lands, realising £160 yearly, of which £30 is set aside for the church, and the remainder divided between the poor and the school in equal proportions. A small estate used to be held by service of blowing a horn at the opening of the Manor Court. Here is the workhouse or Depwade Union: it is a large plain brick building situated on the Norwich road and will hold 500 inmates. This place is popularly called Pulham Market, from there having been formerly a weekly market on Wednesdays, which has been removed to Harleston. A cattle fair was formerly held here. Leather gloves are made here. Pulham Market Hall was formerly the residence of the Percies, a younger branch of the Northumberland family, and is now the property and residence of George Leggett esq. The trustees of the late George Copeman esq. are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are George Leggett esq. W. Henry Cole esq. of London, and G. I. Bevan esq.  ant village and parish, and station on the Waveney Valley branch railway, situated on an elevation, 3 miles north-west from Harleston, in the Southern division of the county, Depwade union, Earsham hundred, county court district of Harleston, rural deanery of Redenhall, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Mary is a handsome structure of stone and flint, in the Perpendicular style: it consists of chancel, nave and aisles, and on the south-west side is a handsome porch (supposed to have been built by William de Wykeham, who was rector of the parish), with two square embattled tower containing 6 bells:
 the exterior is ornamented with various carved figures, and on the top are five figures curiously carved: the interior is lofty, and some of the windows contain stained glass: the nave and chancel have been re-seated with oak, and the screen has been partially restored. The registers date as far back as 1538, when first ordered in Henry VIII.'s time.
 The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £602, with 32 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Crown and held by the Rev. Richard Bond M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge: in 1670 it was endowed by William Pennoyer esq. with 1-15th part of the profits of the manor for the master who keeps the parish school in the old guild chapel of St. James. The Baptists have a chapel here.

 There are several small charities: W. Pennoyer's consist of £4 yearly, paid out of a farm belonging to the Governor of Christ's Hospital, which is given away by the rector an tenant of the farm in money to the poor. The commo land has been enclosed under an Act of Parliament passe in 1838. The trustees of the late George Copeman esq. ar lords of the manor. The principal landowners are Lord Waveney, the Governors of Christ's Hospital, Major Patten and R. A. Bevan esq. The soil is mixed; subsoil, grave and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, peas and beans. The area is 2,966 acres; rateable value, £4,289 5s.
 and the population in 1881 was 822.

QUIDENHAM is a picturesque village and parish situated in a valley, 2 miles south from Eccles Road station, 6½ south from Attleborough and 10 north-east from Thetford, in the Southern division of the county, county court district of Attleborough, Guiltcross hundred and union, rural deanery of Rockland, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Andrew is situated on a slight elevation, a short distance west from the Hall:
 it is in the Early English style and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, and tower of flint and stone, round at the base and the upper part octagonal, with eight recesses for windows: there are three entrances; that on the south side has a high Norman porch: the whole edifice has been reseated, and with open sittings: on the north side is a marble monument to the Lady Sophia Macdonald, eldest daughter of William Charles, fourth Earl of Albemarle; and in the chancel there are two monuments to the Holland family. The register dates from the year 1538. The living a rectory, with that of Snetterton annexed, joint yearly value £636, in the gift of the Earl of Albemarle and held since 1824 by the Rev. The Hon. Edward Southwell Keppel A.A. REEPHAM is a small town with a station on the East Norfolk branch of the Great Eastern railway, also a station at Whitworth on the Eastern and Midlands railway and a polling-place for the Northern division of the county, situated on the banks of the Eyn, a tributary of the Wensum, extending into the parishes of REEPHAM WITH KERDISTON & HACKFORD AND WHITWELL. Reepham is  $\frac{7}{8}$  miles north-west from Aylsham station, 136 from London and 12 north-west from Norwich, in the hundred of Eynsford, Aylsham union and county court district, rural deanery of Reepham and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of Reepham (St. Mary the Virgin) is an ancient structure in the Decorated style, having chancel, nave, aisle, with square embattled tower containing 2 bells; in the chancel is a monument, inlaid with brass, to William de Kerdiston, ob. 1391, and his lady, who is represented in the sculptured head-dress of the period: under an arch in the north wall of the chancel is a figure of a Knight Templar, the Kerdiston family, which has been engraved for Stothard's Monumental Effigies: "there is a handsome painted east window, the gift of the late Rev. Sir E. R. Jodrell bart. in memory of his mother, and another stained window in the chancel, the gift of Lady Jodrell. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, with Kerdiston annexed, joint gross yearly value tithe net charge £836 with 70 acres of glebe and house, in the gift of Trinity College, Cambridge, and held since 1864 by the Rev. Michael Marlow Umtreville Wilkinson M.A. formerly fellow and assistant tutor of that college. Reepham remarkable for three churches having been erected in one churchyard—viz. that of Reepham St. Mary, and those of Whitwell and Hackford; but the last was destroyed by a fire in 1500. The Wesleyans, Wesleyan New Connexion and Primitive Methodists have chapels here. Here are two meteries, one for Reepham and Kerdiston and the other at Hackford and Whitwell. The charities are of £12 yearly value. The market is held on Wednesday for corn and cattle, and a fair is held on June 29th for stock and horses; a large stock sale is held fortnightly by Messrs. Ireland and others, in the New Market sale ground. The Police station is a brick-built building, with magistrates' room and offices attached. Here are also a Reading-room and library in the Market place, well supported. Mrs. Jodrell, lady of the manor, William Bircham and R. H. Blake-Humfrey esqrs. are principal landowners. The area of Reepham with Kerdiston is 2,570 acres; rateable value, £4,399; the population in 1881 was 527.

Hackford-next-Reepham is a parish, which includes Reepham market place. The church, which stood in Reepham churchyard, was destroyed in 1500. The living is a rectory annexed to the vicarage of Whitwell. The charities are £18 yearly. Here is a large horsebreaking establishment, which has been carried on for many years by Mr. Thomas Dyball. Hackford Hall,  $\frac{1}{2}$  miles west, is the seat of Mrs. Collyer, who inherited it from the Messenger-Jonsey family. The Ollands, the seat of William Bircham esq. is a handsome Gothic building. There are four manors: Mr. Robert George is lord of the manor of Hackford Market, and William Sadd esq. of Norwich, of the other three. The principal landowners are Mrs. Collyer, R. H. Blake-Humfrey and William Bircham esqrs. The soil is sand and loam; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are barley, roots, wheat and hay. The area is 1,816 acres; rateable value, £2,996; the population in 1881 was 103.

Kerdiston is a parish,  $\frac{1}{2}$  miles north-east. The principal landowners are R. H. Blake-Humfrey esq. J.P. Mrs. Jodrell and the trustees of the late John Parmeter Leeds esq. The area is 1,680 acres, rated with Reepham; the population in 1871 was 188.

Whitwell is a parish to the south of Reepham. St. Michael's church, standing in Reepham churchyard, is a fine old structure, with square embattled tower, surmounted by four pinnacles, and having a good peal of 6 bells. The register dates from the year 1584. The living is a vicarage, with the rectory of Hackford annexed, joint gross yearly value £437 with house, in the gift of and held since 1873 by the Rev. William Henry Freeman M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. Here are two extensive tanneries, occupied by Mr. Philip Leamon and Mr. Stephen Leeds, who have estates in the parish. The charities are £12 12s. yearly. Whitwell Hall is the residence of Philip Leamon esq. and is a handsome white brick mansion, surrounded by a shrubbery. Mrs. Collyer, of Hackford Hall, is lady of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is sand and loam; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, roots, barley and hay. The area is 1,511 acres; rateable value, £2,739; the population in 1881 was 426.

REPPS-cum-BASTWICK is a parish  $1\frac{1}{2}$  miles from Potter Heigham station on the Eastern and Midlands railway, 10 miles north-west from Yarmouth, near the Hickling navigation, in the Northern division of the county, incorporated hundreds and union of East and West Flegg, county court district of Great Yarmouth, rural deanery of Flegg and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Peter, at Repps, is a small stone edifice, consisting of chancel and nave, with a tower cylindrical at the base and an octagonal upper stage: it was partially restored in 1881. The register dates from the year 1617. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £156, formerly in the gift of the trustees of the Great Hospital, Norwich, but now in the gift of the Governors of King Edward VI. Grammar School, Norwich, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Henry Charles Ash M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford, who resides at Martham. The impropriate tithes, commuted at £400, and 33 acres of glebe, are held by the patrons of the living, who pay the vicar's stipend of £150; the remaining £6 is received from Queen Anne's Bounty. At the enclosure in 1808, 19 acres of marsh land were allotted to the poor. The Rev. Henry Evans Lombe B.A., J.P. of Melton Hall, Wymondham, who is lord of the manor, and Messrs. G. M. Beck and Richard Belson are the principal landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,229 acres; rateable value, £2,342; and the population in 1881 was 261.

BASTWICK is a hamlet half a mile north: here was formerly a church, now in ruins.

BARRET RINGSTEAD (or RINGSTEAD PARVA) is a decayed parish, with one farm, in Docking union, 2 miles south from Hunstanton, and is united with the parish of Hunstanton: it is the property of Hamon le Strange esq. and occupied by Mr. William Charles Dodman, farmer, who resides at Hunstanton. The living is a rectory, yearly value £100, in the gift of Hamon le Strange esq. and held since 1870 by the Rev. Adolphus Waller M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford, who is also vicar of Hunstanton, where he resides.

GREAT RINGSTEAD is a parish and village 8 miles west-by-south from Burnham Market, 2 from Hunstanton, 2½ north from Sedgeford railway station, 16 from Lynn and 14 from Wells, in the Western division of the county, Smitldon hundred, Docking union, Lynn county court district, Heacham rural deanery, Norfolk archdeaconry and Norwich diocese. The village is situated near the German Ocean, and is supplied with excellent water from wells sunk to a great depth in the chalk. There were formerly two parishes, viz. St. Peter's and St. Andrew's, but they were consolidated in 1771, at which time the church of the former was pulled down, with the exception of its circular Norman tower. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient Gothic building of stone and flint, consisting of chancel, nave and south porch, with a tower at the west end containing 1 bell and a clock: it was enlarged in 1865 by the addition of a north aisle, when the entire fabric was restored, at a cost of upwards of £2,500. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, yearly value £630 tithe rent-charge, with 149 acres of glebe, in the gift of Hamon le Strange esq. and held since 1862 by the Rev. William Law Hussey M.A. late student (fellow) of Christ Church, Oxford, and hon. canon of Manchester cathedral. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities are £2 18s. yearly value, besides the fuel allotment of 54 acres, producing £26 yearly for coals. Hamon le Strange esq. is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is various; subsoil, chalk, gravel and sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and mangolds, with a little grass. The area is 2,675 acres of land and 100 of water; rateable value, £3,789; the population in 1881 was 457.

RYSTON (or RISTON) is a parish 2 miles east-by-south from Downham Market station and 1 mile north of Ryston station, in the Western division of the county, rural deanery of Fincham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Michael is a small building, finished with great care: it contains several handsome monuments, all to the Pratt family, one especially noticeable, a statue of white marble of Lady Pratt: most of the windows are stained: it has a square tower, built with quoins of freestone, which, after being for 300 years in a decayed state, was restored in 1858 by Edward Roger Pratt esq. since which the church has been newly seated with oak benches; the chancel roof was restored in 1868, the plaster ceiling taken down and the original roof, 500 years old, discovered: this, which was originally covered with reed, has now flat tiles: it has been carefully cleaned, strengthened and restored where necessary; the work was executed chiefly by the workmen upon the Ryston estate, under the direction of Mr. Lawrie, of Downham Market: in clearing the plaster from the walls several interesting discoveries were made: two lepers' windows, an ambrie and a very beautiful piscina have been brought to light and restored: the porch has been stripped of its plaster, the two curious windows restored, a new roof put on and a warming apparatus fixed, the whole being carried out at Mr. Pratt's expense; a handsome organ was also added. The register dates from the year 1687. The living is a vicarage, with that of Roxham annexed and united with Fordham in 187 by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, joint yearly value £326, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Norwich, and held by the Rev. Robert Rogers M.A. of Trinity College Dublin, who resides at Fordham. The impropriate tithes are commuted at £282 yearly; there are 31 acres of glebe land. In this parish and about 300 yards south of Ryston Hall, stands Kett's Oak, or the Oak of Reformation, where Coniers, the chaplain of the rebels, read prayers and preached and their court sat to administer justice and regulate disorders. Ryston Hall, which underwent considerable improvement in 1867, is the seat of Edward Roger Murray Pratt esq. B.A., J.P. who is lord of the manor and owns the whole parish. The Pratt family is one of the six Norfolk families mentioned by Sir Henry Spelman as living upon their property, in the male line, for more than 300 years: the estates lie in this parish and in Roxham, Fordham and Bexwell. The soil is of a mixed quality; subsoil, clay and sand. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area, including Roxham, is 1,199 acres; rateable value of Ryston £983; the population of Ryston in 1881 was 35

SAHAM TONEY is a village and parish 9 miles from East Dereham, 2 north-west from Watton station and 8 from Swaffham, in the Western division of the county, Wayland hundred, Swaffham union and county court district, rural deanery of Breccles and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. George is a handsome edifice of flint in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, vestry, porch and tower containing 6 bells and clock: the east window of the chancel, representing The Last Supper, was the gift of the Rev. W. H. Parker M.A. the late rector, who restored the whole building at a considerable expense in 1864. The register dates from the year 1547. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £1,122, with 46 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of New College, Oxford and held since 1876 by the Rev. Coker Adams M.A. late fellow of that college. Humphrey Pridaux, dean of Norwich, author of "The Connection of the Old and New Testaments," and other works, was rector here in 1686. The Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, and the United Methodist Free Church have chapels here. There are seven almshouses, four for widows and three for old respectable married couples; and Hunt's charity of £2 yearly is given in calico and flannel, to poor parishioners: the fuel allotment of 86 acres is let for £170 yearly, which is distributed in coals. Near the centre of the village is a mere of 13 acres well stocked with fish: eels of a peculiar shape are caught and pike of great size are also found here. Roman pottery and other antiquities have at various times been found. Elijah Crozier Bailey esq. is lord of the manor of Saham Toney; the manors of Howards, Harveys and Pages belong to the Rev. William Grigson M.A. The principal landowners are Mrs. Perkins, the trustee of the late James Mann esq. the trustees of John Henry Gurney esq. J. Trueman Mills esq. George Clark esq. the Rev. William Grigson and others. The soil is chalk and clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 4,097 acres; rateable value, £7,241; the population in 1881 was 1,212.

The church of All Saints is chiefly of the thirteenth century, consisting of chancel, nave and north aisle, to which has been added a tower built in the fifteenth century, four feet west of the west wall of the nave: the entire church has been restored and a handsome south porch built in 1881. There are some mural tablets to the family of Ward formerly of Walsingham: an hour glass stand, a sanctus bell and two Templars' effigies remain. The register dates from the year 1568, but is not very well preserved. The living is a vicarage, consolidated with that of Wroxham, joint yearly value £326, in the gift of W. H. Trafford esq. and held since 1870, by the Rev. Thomas Francis Boddington M.A. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge. There are two Baptist chapels and one Wesleyan. The charities are as follows:—Mr. Edward Peter, in 1712, left £2 10s. yearly, payable at Easter; the town lands, 24A. 4R. 2P. produce about £30 yearly, which

SALL is a village and parish 1½ miles north from Reepham station on the Great Eastern railway and 6 south-west from Aylsham, in the Northern division of the county, Lynnhundred, Aylsham union and county court district, rural deanery of Sparham and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a noble thirteenth-century building of flint, in the Perpendicular style, with chancel, nave, supported on six fine arches, aisles, porches and lofty tower, which may be seen several miles off, containing six bells: there are several ancient brasses. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, yearly value £568, with residence and 30 acres of glebe, in the gift of Pembroke College, Cambridge, and held since 1847, by the Rev. Charles Earle Marsh M.A. of that college. Sall House, the seat of Mrs. Jodrell, the sister of the late Rev. Sir E. R. Jodrell bart. is a large brick mansion, situated in the midst of a large park, thickly studded with oak and other trees. Colonel W. E. G. Lytton-Bulwer is lord of the manor of Salkirkstall. Mrs. Jodrell and Colonel W. E. G. Lytton-Bulwer are the chief landowners; Mr. B. Stimpson, of Morton-on-the-Hill, is also a landowner here. The soil is sand and loam; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, roots, barley and hay. The area is 1,802A. 3R. 15P.; rateable value, £2,715, the population in 1881 was 194.

SALTHOUSE is a parish situate near the seashore,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  miles north from Holt station, 10 east from Cromer and 12 west from Wells, in the Northern division of the county, Holt hundred and county court district, Erpingham union, rural deanery of Holt and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The surface of this parish is undulating, and the higher grounds command fine sea views; about 500 acres of marsh, belonging to this and the adjoining parishes of Cley and Kelling, were in 1851 drained and embanked, but about 1863 the banks were broken and have not since been repaired: there are 339 acres belonging to this parish, the remainder to the other two parishes before mentioned. The church of St. Nicholas is a large and lofty building, in the Later English style, and consists of chancel and nave with clerestory, aisles, north and south porches, small vestry and square embattled tower containing 1 bell: several of the old oak benches, with poppy heads, still remain: the stone font has some curiously carved emblems (on shields) of the Crucifixion and Evangelistic symbols; it stands on a large octagon stone base of two steps: a stained window was placed in the east end of the south aisle in 1878 by subscription. The register dates from the year 1713. The living is a discharged rectory, annexed to that of Kelling; the tithes for the united parishes are commuted at £520 with 18 acres of glebe, in the gift of the trustees of the late Onesiphorus Randall esq. and held since 1881 by the Rev. John Webb Flavel B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. There are places of worship for the United Methodist Free Church and the Primitive Methodists. On the extreme east of the heath, adjoining Kelling parish, is an earth work, which may be roughly described as a raised bank, much in the form of an old fashioned figure of 6, about 35 paces in diameter, with a mound in the centre, perhaps 6 or 8 ft. higher than the embankment: as at Beeston, the entrance is northerly and towards the sea, and there are Grime graves near at hand: it is unlike that at Beeston in deriving from the horse-shoe form (at Beeston the horse-shoe double, base to base, and the southernmost is smaller and apparently newer than the other, with a bank between them), and neither of the latter have a central mound. The enclosure in 1781 the poor received three allotments comprising 349 acres for fuel and pasturage; one of these comprising 122 acres, was part of Kelling common. Trustees of the late O. Randall esq. are lords of the manor and with Messrs. W. Purdy and W. Davy esqrs. and Mr. Johnson are the chief landowners. The soil is chiefly light subsoil, marl. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and grass. The area is 1,559 acres; rateable value, £1,362s. 6d.; and the population in 1881 was 207.

SANDRINGHAM is a village and parish  $7\frac{1}{2}$  miles north-by-east from Lynn and  $1\frac{1}{2}$  east from Wolferton station, on the Lynn and Hunstanton railway, in the Western division of the county, Freebridge Lynn hundred and union, Lynn county court district, rural deanery of Lynn and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich: the name is derived from its deep sandy soil, of which more than 200 acres are on the extensive heath stretching hence to Wolferton. The church of St. Mary Magdalen, standing in the grounds of Sandringham House, is a small but beautiful building, restored in 1857 by Lady Harriet Cowper: it is in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave and porch, and has a tower at the west end containing 1 bell: the windows are filled with richly stained Munich glass: there is a handsome brass lectern eagle, chosen and presented by H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, in commemoration of the recovery of her husband: the font is handsome: at the east end of the church rest the remains of the infant Prince John Charles Alexander, to whose memory there is a small and very pretty white marble tomb and cross, bearing the inscription, "Suffer Little Children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven:" the east end was decorated by the Prince of Wales in 1878 with new credence table, three chancel windows, in memory of the infant prince, and of Colonel Grey, late equerry; also memorial brass to late rector on south wall of chancel, by friends: there is an organ with two rows of keys and pedals, the gift of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. The register dates from the year 1557. The living is a rectory, with Babingley and West Newton annexed, joint yearly value £210 with residence, in the gift of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and held by the Rev. Frederick Alfred John Hervey M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who also holds the post of Domestic Chaplain to the Prince of Wales, and is also Hon. Chaplain to Her Majesty the Queen. Bricks are made in the parish, and carr stone is obtained, both of which have been used in the construction of cottages on the estate. The parishes of Sandringham, Wolferton, Babingley, West Newton, and parts of Appleton and Dersingham, containing between 7,000 and 8,000 acres, were purchased by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales from the Hon. C. S. Cowper for about £220,000. Sandringham House, the seat of Field Marshal H.R.H. the Prince of Wales K.G. was erected in 1870, the old house being entirely cleared away: the style of the new building is Elizabethan, the walls being of brick, with Ketton stone dressings and finishings: the floors are of fire-proof construction throughout, formed with rolled iron joists and concrete: the main part of the building, with the offices, forms a parallelogram of about 450 ft. by 70 ft.: in the west front are placed the drawing and dining rooms, with libraries adjoining: on the east side is the principal entrance, with a stone portico forming a covered carriage entrance: the architect was A. J. Humbert esq. of London, and the builders Messrs. J. and M. Goggs, of Swaffham: the flower gardens and pleasure grounds, though not very extensive, are tastefully laid out and interspersed with evergreens and venerable oaks: there are also some pieces of water; the kitchen garden is 1 acre in extent, seven acres of which are within the wall, and form a parallelogram with an oval at each end, with convenient carriage drive around: the stables are spacious to hold about forty horses: the park is stocked with deer, and the estate abounds with game, including blackcock. Sandringham Water Works were erected in 1878, to supply Sandringham House with pure water; the supply is from a chalk spring in Den Beck Wood, the yield of which varies from 15,000 to 150,000 gallons in the 24 hours, and the level of which is 92 ft. above Ordnance datum: the water is conveyed through stoneware pipes to the pumping station where it is softened by Clarke's process to about 6 degrees: the tank on the tower is octagonal and of cast iron, capable of containing 32,000 gallons: this tank is upwards of 60 ft. from the ground: thence the water is driven to the Hall through 6-inch pipes; and to the stables and garden through 3-inch pipes. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is heath, peat and sand, with clay in parts, with a subsoil of the same: the farm (east end of parish), light soil, with subsoil of chalk. The crops, wheat, barley, turnips and seeds, on the four-course system. The area is 1,172 acres; rateable value, £1,223; the population in 1881 was 81.

OTTOW is a parish and scattered village, part of which in the high road from North Walsham to Norwich, 9 miles north-east from Norwich, 5 south from North Walsham and 2½ west from Worsstead station, in the Northern division of the county, South Erpingham hundred, Aylsham union and county court district, rural deanery of Ingworth, archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of Saints is of flint, and stands rather high: it has chancel, nave, aisles, and south porch, lofty square embattled tower, fine east window, also an excellent organ presented by the late Sir H. E. Durrant bart. in 1844. The registers date from the year 1561. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £230 with 17 acres of glebe and house, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich and held since 1872 by the Rev. John Tyrwhitt Walker M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The impropriated rectorial tithes of Scottow were commuted for £500 and an allotment of 21A, 2R. 16P. was awarded to the poor at the enclosure in 1831. At the back of the Worsstead public-house a room has been built, 100 feet long and 27 feet broad, for the meeting of the members of the Odd Fellows, Manchester Unity. Scottow Hall, the seat of Lady Durrant, is a handsome building with two wings, standing in an extensive and well-wooded park. The representatives of the late Sir Henry Josias Durrant are lords of the manor and chief landowners. The soil of this neighbourhood is rich and well cultivated: the subsoil, principally brick earth. The number of acres is 275; rateable value, £3,791; and the population in 1881 was 430.

SHERINGHAM is a parish comprising the villages of UPPER and LOWER SHERINGHAM, about 5 miles west from Cromer station, 4 east-north-east from Holt and 14 from North Walsham, in the Northern division of the county, North Erpingham hundred, Erpingham union, Holt county court district, rural deanery of Kepps, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The surface is undulating and the scenery, richly embellished with wood, is in some parts beautifully picturesque. The village is supplied with water brought by pipes to a large reservoir, formed in 1814. In Upper Sheringham is the parish church of All Saints, a handsome building of flint with stone dressings, in the Early and Later English styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, with a lofty square embattled tower containing 6 bells. It has a handsome monument to Abbot Upcher esq.; and two memorial windows, one to the Hon. Mrs. Upcher, and the other to Miss Upcher, daughter of H. R. Upcher esq.; there are also a few old brasses and a rare and curious old rood-loft and screen. The register dates from the year 1670. The living is a vicarage, yearly value between £75 and £85, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich and held since 1862 by the Rev. Lethbridge Edward Charles Moore M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. The vicarage house is a modern building on an elevated site in Upper Sheringham, built in 1868 by the present incumbent mostly from grants from the Gally Knight Fund and assistance from Queen Anne's Bounty. Here is a reading-room, at Upper Sheringham, opened in 1864. The fuel allotment of 34 acres, is cut by the poor, who have also £19 yearly from charities. LOWER SHERINGHAM is situated on the cliffs about a mile and a quarter from Upper Sheringham, and is a considerable fishing station: here are curing houses, and about 150 boats, used in the fishery for herring, cod, skate, whiting, crabs and lobsters, of which great quantities are sent to Norwich and London; about 23 of these boats are large and fitted for deep sea fishing. The cliffs in this neighbourhood are constantly being undermined and large portions of land carried away by the action of the sea. The coast-guard stationed here consists SHINGHAM is a very small parish  $4\frac{1}{2}$  miles south-west from Swaffham, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Clackclose, union and county court district of Swaffham, rural deanery of Fincham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Botolph is a very ancient Norman building, having chancel which has been reroofed with slates, and nave which has a thatched roof: the south doorway is a curious and well preserved specimen of Early Norman: there is no tower: a bell with the following inscription stands in the nave at the west end of the edifice, "Thomas Newman made me, 1738": there is also a curious piscina. The register dates from the year 1762. The living is a rectory, with Beechamwell All Saints annexed, with which Beechamwell St. Mary and Beechamwell St. John were united by Order in Council 30th December 1878:

Chapman William, farm bailiff to J. Fielden esq

the united value is about £504, with 119 acres of glebe and house; the respective patrons, Joshua Fielden esq. and the Lord Chancellor are to have the alternate right of presentation, and the Lord Chancellor having appointed the Rev. George Roberts B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1878, Joshua Fielden esq. has the next turn of presentation to the united benefices: J. Fielden esq. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is light and sandy ; subsoil, chalk and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 935 acres ; rateable value, 445 ; and the population in 1881 was 71.

SHIPDHAM is a large and well-built village and parish 4 miles south-west from Yaxham station and 5 south-by-west from East Dereham, in the Southern division of the county, Mitford hundred, Mitford and Launditch union, East Dereham county court district, rural deanery of Hingham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. All Saints' church is a spacious edifice of flint with stone facings in the Early English style: in 1845 extensive alterations were made: it consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch, embattled tower surmounted by a wooden cupola and spire, and containing 6 bells and clock: in a parvise over the porch is a collection of rare books, chiefly on theology, bequeathed by a former rector: this church contains one of the finest original wooden lecterns in the county, of unusual design and great beauty; its shaft triangular, composed of three buttresses, the angles between which are ornamented with a row of quatrefoils, from the top to the bottom: the shaft rests on a base of three members terminated by a lion sejant: the desk is of a double form, very richly carved: a copy of this lectern is to be seen in Mattishall church, and another in St. Mark's, New Lakenham. The church is now (1883) being restored. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, yearly value £1,240, with residence and 49 acres of glebe, in the gift of the trustees of the late Rev. George Curling Bailey and held since 1883 by the Rev. George Deans Dundas Watt M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford. A Burial Board consisting of 9 members was formed in 1877: there is a public cemetery of 2 acres, with chapel, which was opened in 1879. There is a Congregational church and Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Town Estate produces about £130 yearly, which is carried to the churchwardens' account, except a small sum, which is distributed among the poor. The fuel allotments, awarded in 1809, comprise about 126 acres, producing £140 a year, which is distributed among the poor in coals. There is also £4 5s. for the poor from other charities. Anciently here was a market, established by the Bishop of Ely, who built a hall here in the reign of Henry III.: but the market has long been obsolete. There is a stock fair held on the last Monday in June. A Temperance Hall was built in 1875. The chief landowners are Eton College, King's College, Cambridge, W. G. Barker esq. and R. T. Gurdon esq. M.P. The soil is loam and clay ; subsoil, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. This parish is of considerable extent, covering the space of 5 miles from north-east to south-west. The area is 4,560 acres ; rateable value, £9,245 ; the population in 1881 was 1,526.

SHOTTESHAM ALL SAINTS (or HIGH SHOTTESHAM) is a village and parish 3 miles east from Swainsthorpe station and 6 south from Norwich, in the Southern division of the county, Henstead hundred and union, Norwich county court district, rural deanery of Brooke, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of All Saints is a flint building, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, tower containing 5 bells and porch. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £564, with 73 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Robert Fellowes esq. and held since 1838 by the Rev. Charles Fellowes M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. A United Free Methodist chapel was erected here in 1879. This parish has £4 a year for the poor left by T. Bransby in 1730: Eliza Bayspool left, in 1711, £3 for schooling six poor children and £4 12s. for the poor of this parish. This parish, together with that of Shottesham St. Mary, has the privilege of sending eight poor people to the East Greenwich Hospital, called the Norfolk Hospital, under the charity of Henry Howard, Earl of Northampton, in the reign of James I. and under a new scheme a hospital is to be established here for 8 poor men, who will each receive 10s. a week, with allowance for washing, light and fuel—in default of candidates from Shottesham, vacancies may be filled from Castle Rising and Bungay. Robert Fellowes esq. J.P. and D.L. is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is sand and clay: subsoil, sand, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and turnips. The area is 1,597 acres; rateable value, £3,045; the population in 1881 was 379.

SHOTTESHAM ST. MARY (or LOW SHOTTESHAM) comprises the parishes of St. Mary, St. Martin and St. Botolph, and is situated 6 miles south from Norwich and 2 east from Swainsthorpe station, in the Southern division of the county, Henstead hundred and union, Norwich county court district, rural deanery of Brooke, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Mary is a small flint building, in the Perpendicular style: it consists of chancel, nave, tower and 1 bell; the church was restored and re-seated in 1831. The register dates from the year 1637. St. Martin's and St. Botolph's churches have been in ruins for several centuries: their benefices, with the rectory of St. Mary, were consolidated with Shottesham All Saints soon after the Reformation: joint yearly value £564 with 73 acres of glebe, in the gift of Robert Fellowes esq. and held since 1838 by the Rev. Charles Fellowes M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The poor share some of the charities left for All Saints, £4 yearly having been left by

T. Bransby in 1730, and Eliza Bayspool, in 1711, left 20s. yearly, and Miss A. Fellowes, in 1817, left £50 to be invested in £3 per Cent. Stock. Shottesham Park is the beautiful seat of Robert Fellowes esq. J.P. and D.L.; the park comprises about 400 acres, is well-wooded, and extends to the river Tas: the house is a modern structure, built on the site of the ancient hall, which was formerly the seat of the D'Oyley family. Robert Fellowes esq. is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is of a good mixed description; subsoil, clay and loam. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and turnips. The area is 1,910 acres; rateable value, £3,680; and the population in 1881 was 316.

SNETTISHAM is a village and parish, with station on the Lynn and Hunstanton railway, half a mile south-west from the village, which is 11 miles north-north-east from Lynn, and 18 $\frac{1}{2}$  from London, in the Western division of the county, Smithdon hundred, Docking union, Lynn county court district, Heacham rural deanery, Norfolk archdeaconry and Norwich diocese: it is situated on the coast road between Hunstanton and Lynn. The church of St. Mary was beautifully renovated in 1856, at an expense of £1,200, raised by local rates and voluntary subscriptions: it is a large and handsome building of stone and flint in the Perpendicular style, consisting of nave, aisles, and south transept, and has a square tower at the eastern end containing a peal of 5 bells, and surmounted by a lofty spire, which may be seen for miles around, forming a landmark for vessels at sea: the chancel is in ruins and only a small portion is now standing, covered with ivy: the entrance is through a finely-grained vestibule at the west end, above which is a handsome window of six lights, in the florid Gothic style, adorned with richly-stained glass, chiefly the gift of Mrs. Dora Hill: there are memorial windows, one on the north side, erected by Capt. Campbell, to his mother; on the south side, one by several friends, to Mr. John Dawes, of Preedy, architect; on the south-west side, by the parishioners and other friends, to Ann Maria, wife of the Rev. H. H. Bridgwater M.A.: it contains a curious font which has been restored, and marble monuments, with the effigy of Sir Wymond Carye, who died in 1612, and a brass, on which are portrayed figures of John Cremer and his family, dated 1610: the nave is light and lofty, and is separated from the aisles by a handsome arcade: the pulpit is painted and is supposed to be of great antiquity: the transept contains the vaults of the le Stranges, and is kept in repair by the le Strange family: there are several armorial bearings. The churchyard was enlarged and the enlargement consecrated in 1879. The registers date—marriages, from 1754; burials and baptisms, from 1760.

bart. M.P., D.L. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is sandy; subsoil, chalky. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The acreage is included in Rushford parish; rateable value, £837; the population in 1881 was 49.

The living is a vicarage, yearly value £110, arising from tithe rent charge, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1878 by the Rev. Henry Hugh Bridgwater M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. There is a fuel allotment of 17 acres. A statute fair for hiring servants is held on the 12th of October. In the parish there are chalk pits, lime-kilns, and three quarries of carr stone, two of which are now being worked by Mr. G. Lawson, to the depth of about 29 feet, at which depth there is frequently found a mixture of pebble stones embedded in the carr stone, also pieces of wood, but which go to powder on exposure to the air: the carr stone, on being taken from its bed, is soft, but acquires great hardness when exposed to the air, and is much used in buildings; the New Hall on Ken hill, for Mr. Green, is built of it, and great quantities have been used by the Estuary Company for encasing the Wash embankments. Many objects of antiquity have been found here at different periods, among which were a number of celts. The Old Hall, the property of Edward Green esq. J.P. of Wakefield, Yorkshire, is a spacious mansion of brick, in the Elizabethan style, surrounded by well-wooded grounds, enclosed by a wall. The New Hall has been erected for Mr. Green, from the designs of J. J. Stevenson esq. of London, is an Early English stone house placed on Ken hill, commanding extensive views over the Wash, Lincolnshire, and Sandringham woods, and is surrounded by a park; although the highest ground in Norfolk, on a well being sunk an abundant supply of water was found at a depth of only 17 feet. The chief landowner is Edward Green esq. The soil is various, but chiefly of a good mixed character; subsoil, principally chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and mangolds. The area is 5,580 acres; rateable value, £9,992; the population in 1881 was 1,235.

SOUTHGATE is a hamlet, three quarters of a mile south-west from the church. Here is a coastguard station, and the railway station also.

The church of St. Mary the Virgin is an old Gothic building, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle and a fine square tower containing 1 bell: it has some stone stalls, and contains several monuments and a handsome mural tablet to the Rev. Christopher Stannard B.D. fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, many years rector of this parish. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a rectory, with that of Thursford annexed, joint gross yearly value £840, with residence at each place, in the gift of the Masters and fellows of St. John's College, Cambridge, and held since 1851 by the Rev. George Henry Marsh B.D. formerly fellow of that college and son of the late Right Rev. Herbert Marsh, Bishop of Peterborough. The rectory house is a fine specimen of ornamental brickwork, and was built by Sir Ralph Shelton, and has been considerably enlarged and beautified by the present rector, and its elaborate south front in part restored. EAST SOMERTON is a parish 2 miles from Hembsby and Martham stations on the Eastern and Midlands railway, about 8½ miles north-by-west from Yarmouth, and near the North Sea, in the Northern division of the county, incorporated hundreds of East and West Flegg, county court district of Yarmouth, rural deanery of Flegg, and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church which was dedicated to St. Mary, has been many years in ruins, and the only parts now remaining are the tower and walls, which are covered with ivy, with a large tree growing in the midst; the inhabitants attend Winterton church. The register dates from the year 1717. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the rectory of Winterton, joint yearly tithe commutation £544 11s. 8d. with 30 acres of glebe, in the gift of and held since 1867 by the Rev. Wm. Green M.A. of Trinity Coll. Cambridge, who resides at Winterton. Burnley Hall (a mansion surrounded by beautiful gardens, plantations and lawn) is the property of F. Charsley esq. who is the sole landowner; it is occupied by James A. Mottram esq. The soil is light mixed; subsoil, sand, gravel and clay. The chief crops are the usual cereals and roots. The area is 798 acres; rateable value £1,353, and the population in 1881 was 47.

WEST SOMERTON is a parish, 1½ miles from Martham station, on the Eastern and Midlands railway, about 8 miles north-by-west from Yarmouth, in the Northern division of the county, incorporation and union of East and West Flegg, Yarmouth county court district, rural deanery of Flegg, archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Mary is a stone thatched building, consisting of chancel and nave and tower, the lower part of which is circular and the upper part octagonal: when this church was undergoing some repairs in 1867 a mural painting, about 12 feet long, representing the Son of Man coming in the Clouds of Heaven with great Power and Majesty, was discovered between the windows in the nave, which had been covered with several coats of plaster, and subsequently several additional frescoes were discovered, all of which have been carefully preserved: there is one of St. Christopher: in 1878, a very interesting Early English painting of the Virgin and Child was found under the floor of the pulpit: the church has been partially restored, under the supervision of Mr. J. T. Bottle. The register dates from the latter part of the 18th century. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £199, in the gift of Sir Thomas Fraser Grove bart. and held since 1867 by the Rev. Joseph Budd, of Cuddesdon Theological College. Here was an hospital for lepers, founded in the reign of Henry II. by Ralph de Cranville, Lord Chief Justice of England. Human bones have occasionally been found on the Hall estate, and a stone jug and skeleton were dug up in 1844 near the churchyard. Hales, the Norfolk giant, was born and buried in this parish; his height as stated on his tomb was 7 feet 6 inches. The Hall, the seat of Bernard James Cuddon-Fletcher esq. J.P. is situated on an eminence, and commands views of the German ocean both to the north and east, and is the old manor house of Somerton-cum-Butley: some portions are very old, but it has been considerably enlarged. B. J. Cuddon-Fletcher esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor, Captain Bird, Miss Hilton, the trustees of the late Robert Rising esq. and F. Charsley esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is a fine rich loam; subsoil, generally brick earth, intersected with veins of sand. The marsh land in this parish has been thoroughly drained by a commission of Sewers under the Local Drainage Act of 1861; a large portion of the land so drained belonging to and farmed by B. J. Cuddon-Fletcher esq. produces large and successive crops of corn. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley &c. The area is 1,130 acres; rateable value, £2,114; and the population in 1881 was 232.

SOUTHBURGH is a parish and village 3½ miles south-west from Thuxton station, and 8 south from East Dereham, in the Southern division of the county, Mitford hundred, Mitford and Launditch union, East Dereham county court district, rural deanery of Hingham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church is a building of flint with stone dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and south porch, square tower and spire: the date of the chancel is about A.D. 1290 and of the nave A.D. 1320: the church underwent a thorough restoration in the years 1878-1882, at a cost approaching £5,000, the greater part of which was contributed by members of the Gurdon family: the tower and spire were completed as a memorial to the late Hon. Mrs. Henrietta Gurdon, of Letton Hall, who died May 28, 1880: the architect was Mr. J. A. Reeve, diocesan surveyor. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, with those of Letton and Cranworth, joint gross yearly value tithe rent charge £790, with 31 acres of glebe and house at Cranworth and 7 acres here, in the gift of Robert Thornhaugh Gurdon esq. M.P. and held since 1874 by the Rev. Thomas Parry Garnier M.A. rural dean, late fellow of All Souls College, Oxford, who resides at Cranworth. There is a reading-room, built about 1876. The fuel allotment of 13 acres is let at £20 yearly. Robert Thornhaugh Gurdon esq. M.P. who is lord of the manor, and John Wayland esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 1,216 acres; rateable value, £1,847; the population in 1881 was 322.

SPROWSTON is an extensive parish and very straggling village, 3 miles north from Norwich, in the Southern division of the county, Taverham hundred, St. Faith's union, Norwich county court district, rural deanery of Taverham archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Mary and Margaret is an ancient flint and stone building, and has at various times undergone repairs and alterations which have much interfered with its original architecture: it consists of chancel, nave, aisles, and square tower containing 3 bells: it contains several handsome monuments, amongst the most interesting of which, but in a state of great dilapidation, are many relating to the Corbet family, the Micklethwaits, one to the Morse family, and several other mural tablets, one in the chancel dated 1665 to Thomas Adams, who was Lord Mayor of London in 1645; the chancel window is stained, and was given by Mrs. Rushmore. The register dates from the year 1747. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Norwich and held since 1878 by the Rev. Edward Francis Linton M.A. of University College, Oxford. A vicarage was erected in 1882. There is £30 yearly for school. The village is about 3 miles in length, and contains

STALHAM is a parish and market town, with station on the Eastern and Midlands railway, and is a polling-place for the Northern division of the county, pleasantly situated on the high road from North Walsham to Yarmouth, and on the navigable Ant, over which is Wayford bridge; from the former place it is 8 miles south-east, and from the latter 16 north-west and 15 miles from Norwich, in Happening hundred, Smallburgh union, Walsham county court district, rural deanery of Waxham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Mary is of flint and stone, and is a fine old building, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and south porch; a new chancel was built in 1827, and the nave and aisles repaired in 1854 when the church was reset: in 1872 the church was fully restored with new porch, floors and windows in the aisles: the font is very fine, and was restored in 1860 by the vicar; it has representations of the Apostles and the Baptism of our Saviour, all finely carved: there is an organ, and a brass to the Riches family, dated 1624: the tower which is square, and contains 1 bell, has been injured by lightning. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £194, with residence and 34 acres of glebe, of which 8½ are in the parish, in the gift of the Rev. James White, and held since 1852 by the Rev. Joseph Neville White B.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, who resides in the vicarage, adjoining the church. Here are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. The poor have allotments to a considerable extent. The public charities are John Riches', producing £29, and invested in the hands of the vicar and churchwardens, and another producing about £24. The river Ant affords facilities for landing coal, corn, malt and all kinds of merchandise; Stalham and Sutton Broads form a sheet of water connected with this river, three-quarters of a mile from south-west to north-east, and 1 mile from west to east: it is mostly overgrown with reeds, but there are two channels, one to Stalham and the other to Sutton. Here is a Corn Hall, a Lecture Room and a Police Station. Tuesday is the market day. The parish consists of two manors; Edward Cooke esq. of Stalham, is lord of the manor of Linford and Wilds, and George Randall Johnson esq. is lord of the manor of Stalham Hall and chief proprietor of the rectorial tithes, which amount £363, and are divided amongst eight proprietors. The principal landowners are the Rev. James White, and the trustees of Robert Cooke esq. and George Randall Johnson esq. The soil is fine strong land: subsoil, brick-earth sand and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley roots and beans. The area is 1,792 acres; rateable value £4,071; and the population in 1881 was 852.

STRATTON STRAWLESS is a village and parish  $1\frac{1}{2}$  miles south-west from Buxton station on the Great Eastern railway, 7 miles north from Norwich, and  $4\frac{1}{2}$  south from Aylsham, in the Northern division of the county, South Erpingham hundred, Aylsham union and county court district, rural deanery of Ingworth and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Margaret, is a structure of stone, and has chancel, nave and square tower containing 6 bells, and contains some old specimens of stained glass and various monuments: one effigy is supposed to represent the last Ralph de Stratton; and upon an altar-tomb of black marble, is that of T. Marsham, in a shroud, reclining on a pillow, above which are represented the figures of two angels sounding their trumpets; and four effigies of Henry Marsham, his wife, son and daughter, in black and white marble. The regiter dates from the year 1562. The living is a rectory, in the gift of the Rev. Henry Philip Marsham B.C.L. of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and held since 1872, by the Rev. Henry Horace Matchett M.A. (formerly chaplain Royal Navy), of Emmanuel College, Cambridge: it has 32 acres of glebe and house; the tithes have been commuted for £287 yearly. The poor's land consists of about 28 acres, situate in the parish of Marsham, which lets for £25 yearly. The Hall, the seat of Charles Robert Marsham esq. J.P. is a large white modern mansion, which stands in a pleasant park, near the Norwich road, surrounded by trees of various kinds, amongst which is a cedar of unusual growth, which has become an object of considerable interest to the neighbourhood. The manor has been held by the Marsham family since the time of Edward I. R. Marsham esq. F.R.S. who died in 1797, at the advanced age of 90, was a celebrated naturalist, and planted many of the flourishing trees around the Hall. The parish is the property of Charles Robert Marsham esq. and the Rev. Henry P. Marsham, the former being lord of the manor. The soil is sand and gravel; subsoil, brick earth. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 1,582 acres; rateable value, £1,600; the population in 1881 was 186.

S W A F F H A M.

SWAFFHAM is a market and union town, parish, head of a county court district, and polling-place for the Western division of the county, and station on the Lynn and Dereham branch of the Great Eastern railway, and a railway has been made connecting Swaffham with Watton and so with Thetford, 113 miles from London by railway and 96 by road, 14 south-east from Lynn, 12 west from East Dereham, 24 west from Norwich, and 23 north-west from Wymondham, in South Greenhoe hundred, Cranwich rural deanery, Norfolk archdeaconry and Norwich diocese. The town is pleasantly situated on a rising ground, in a fine open country, 210 feet above sea level. The inhabitants enjoy peculiar privileges, the town being an ancient demesne.

The town is not incorporated, but is under the jurisdiction of a local board of nine members, under the Public Health Act, 1840. The town is lighted with gas. The Swaffham Water Works were opened September 16th, 1867: the occupiers of cottages of the annual rental of £5 and under are supplied with water from the works free of charge; the cost is defrayed from a portion of the fund derived from the Town Estate.

The church of SS. Peter and Paul is said to have been built in 1474; it is in the Early English style, and is cruciform, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts and an embattled tower, bearing two shields, charged with the emblems of its patron saints: the tower was completed in the year 1510: the north aisle is reported to have been built by John Chapman, of whom a very doubtful tradition, as to his mode of acquiring wealth, exists; he was churchwarden in 1462, and his device, carved in certain parts of the building, probably gave rise to the tale of his being a pedlar, but are more likely quaint rebuses on the name of Chapman: among the monuments are those of John Botwright D.D. seventh master of Corpus Christi college, or Bene't College, Cambridge, who was a native of this town, proctor of the university, and chaplain to King Henry VI.; and of Catherine Steward, daughter and heiress of Thomas Paine, of Castle Acre, and wife of William Steward, of Ely; she died in 1590: here are also several monumental brasses, and many stones from which the brasses have been taken away: in the vestry is some armour and a library of books: the church was restored and the galleries removed in 1877; a large handsome organ has been put in place of the old one, and a beautiful reredos presented by Herbert Day esq.; a stained window also was placed in the south transept by the Day family, as a memorial, and one in the north transept by the parishioners in memory of three children of the present vicar. The parish register dates from the year 1557. The living is a vicarage, yearly value, tithe rent charge £543 with 36 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich and held since 1872

by the Rev. George Robert Winter M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford.

A Mission-room in connexion with the church, situated at the North Pool, was built in 1874, the gift of a lady in the parish.

The Baptists, the Wesleyan Methodists, and the Primitive Methodists have chapels.

The charities are numerous. The town estate, including the heath, enclosed in 1863, produces the yearly sum of £190, £100 of which is applied for supplying the poor with water, £35 for the church fabric, and £25 for church services, and £16 for town improvements, the surplus being retained as a reserve fund. £2 is derived from the camping land. There is also the interest of about £1,212, invested in the £3 per Cent. Consols, which is expended in coats.

The Corn Hall, in the Market place, is a handsome building, erected in 1858 by a company, in shares of £5, and used as a place for public meetings. At the Shire Hall the general quarter sessions of the peace are held, by adjournment from the city of Norwich. William R. Haggard esq. and Lord Walsingham are chairmen alternately; and there are magistrates' meetings. The Assembly Rooms, in the Market place, were erected in 1817. Here are iron foundries, a bank and savings bank, and a subscription library and reading room. A monument and drinking fountain was erected by subscription in 1882 in the Market place, in honour of the late Sir W. Bagge M.P. There is a small market every Saturday. The cross on the Market Hill was rebuilt in 1783, by the then Earl of Orford. Annual fairs are held the second Wednesday in May, the third Wednesday in July, and the first Wednesday in November, for cattle and sheep. The G Company of the 3rd Volunteer Battalion Norfolk Regiment was formed in 1860, and has about 102 efficient members; the armoury is at the Corn Hall.

On the north-west side of the town about 2,370 acres or common land were inclosed in 1868, under the direction of the Inclosure Commissioners. Goodluck's Close, north-west of the town, is a corruption of Guthlac's Stow, a chapel founded by Allen, son of Godfrey de Swaffham, in the reign of Henry II. and dedicated to St. Guthlac; it was a cell to the Priory of Castle Acre. The other antiquities of note in the neighbourhood are those of Castle Acre and Oxborough Hall.

Richard Horace Hamond, Commander R.N., J.P. and Thomas Hamond esq. are lords of the manor, the rectorial tithes are now in possession of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, commuted sum £1,143. The principal landowners are Richard Horace Hamond, Commander R.N. Thomas Hamond esq. Miss Fontaine and John Wayland esq.

TAVERHAM is a pleasant village and parish, whence the hundred takes its name, 2 miles from Drayton station on the Eastern and Midlands railway, about 6 north-west from Norwich, on the river Wensum, in the Southern division of the county, St. Faith's union, Norwich county court district, rural deanery of Taverham and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Edmund is a plain detached building: it consists of a chancel and nave, with a porch on the south side, and round tower with a conical top (containing 1 bell) and contains a fine organ, presented by Mrs. Micklethwait: there is also a very handsome font: the church has been thoroughly restored and refitted, at the sole expense of the late Rev. J. N. Micklethwait M.A. who also, in the year 1873, presented a stained window, representing The Ascension, in memory of his mother, Lady Charlotte Micklethwait. The register dates from the year 1513. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £329 yearly, with residence and 42 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich and H. S. N. Micklethwait esq. and held since 1850 by the Rev. Robert Clerke Burton M.A. of Arden College, Cambridge. The principal occupation here is derived from the extensive paper-mill of Messrs. Delane, Magnay & Co. who employ upwards of 200 hands; in addition to the water power employed by this mill, five powerful steam engines are constantly at work. The Hall was rebuilt in the manorial style by the late Rev. J. N. Micklethwait M.A. and is much admired for the picturesque views obtained from it: it is the property of H. S. N. Micklethwait esq. who is lord of the manor and chief landowner, but is now occupied by William Waring esq. The soil is sandy; subsoil, sand, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and turnips. The parish contains 3,809 acres; rateable value, £2,417; and the population in 1881 was 207.

TERRINGTON ST. CLEMENT is a village, parish and station on the Lynn and Sutton Bridge railway, 5 miles west from Lynn by the ferry and 6½ by road, and 10 north-east from Wisbech, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Freebridge Marshland, union of Wisbech county court district of Lynn, rural deanery of Lynn Marshland and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Clement is a spacious cruciform structure of freestone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and transept, with a massive detached tower at the north-west angle containing 6 bells: it was erected in 1380, and repaired, new roofed, and the lofty pinnacles restored in 1829; the vestry has been rebuilt and the chancel restored at a cost of £2,200, defrayed by Canon Lightfoot, now Bishop of Durham; carved oak stalls have been added to the chancel; the organ, erected at a cost of about 200 guineas, was the gift of the late Rev. T. T. Upwood M.A.: the font has a cover, a lofty piece of Gothic tabernacle work, and on its panels are painted figures of the Baptism and temptation of the Saviour; there are marble tablets to the Bentinck, Upwood, Goode, Morphew and Hamond families. The register dates from the year 1598. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £453, with house, in the gift of the Crown and held since 1876 by the Rev. Marlborough Crosse M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The Wesleyans, United Methodist Free Church and Primitive Methodists have each a chapel here. The charities are of the yearly value of £10. Orange Farm was the residence of Baron Feagles, a Netherlands refugee, who entertained the Prince of Orange here when the French had invaded Holland, from which circumstance the house obtained its name. Walter Terrington L.D. and John Colton, Archbishop of Armagh, were both born here in the fourteenth century. In 1844, on removing part of the Roman bank, several Roman coins were found.

Hamond Lodge, restored in 1810 by the late Sir A. S. Hamond, is a Tudor residence, standing in a park sheltered by plantations, and now the residence and property of David Ward esq. There are four manors in this parish; George William Pierrepont Bentinck esq. M.P. is lord of the manor of Terrington; Sir William Hovell Brown folkes bart. J.P., D.L., M.P. is lord of Howard's manor; and James Walker esq. is lord of Branch's manor, and the trustees of the late Rev. T. T. Upwood are the lords of Lovell's manor. G. W. P. Bentinck esq. M.P. Sir W. Hovell Brown folkes bart. M.P. and James Walker esq. and Thomas Batman Marriott esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy, and the subsoil clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans, peas and barley. The parish contains 9,410 acres of land; rateable value, £16,400; the population in 1871 was 2,256, and in 1881, 2,028.

TERRINGTON ST. JOHN is a village and parish situated on the Wisbech road, 3 miles from Terrington St.
Clement's Railway Station, 6½ miles south-west-by-west from Lynn and about the same distance from Wisbech, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Freebridge Marshland, union of Wisbech, county court district of Lynn, rural deanery of Lynn Marshland and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. John stands on the north side of the parish, and was built at "Peyke's Cross" in 1423, under a licence granted by the Bishop of Ely and made parochial by the Archbishop of Canterbury in 1530:
it is a handsome stone structure, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, with a square tower (in which are 6 bells) which stands about 15 feet from the church, but is connected with it by a building called the Priest's House: it was repaired in 1853, at a cost of £150:
there is one stained window. The register dates from the year 1536. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £206 with 5½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Crown and held since 1843 by the Rev. John Bramhall B.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, who is rural dean of Lynn Marshland and J.P. of Norfolk: there is a vicarage house, which was built in 1845. The charities amount to about £37 a year, derived from the poor's land of 13 acres. There is an endowment from 25 acres of land of about £80 a year, which is applied to the maintenance of the church. Almshouses for four widows are endowed with four acres of land for the purchase of coals. Sir William Hovell Brown folkes bart.
M.P., J.P., D.L. who is lord of the manor, Messrs. Samuel Stockdale, James Johnson, the trustees of William Ingram,

William Edward Page, Philip Craneheld, William B. Johnson esq. and G. P. Bentinck esq. M.P. are the chief land owners. The soil is clay and loam; subsoil, gault and clay
The chief crops are wheat, peas, oats, beans, coleseed mustard, roots and grass. The parish contains 2,506 acre of land; rateable value, £5,223; the population in 1881
was 673.

THETFORD.

THETFORD is an ancient borough, railway station, market town, municipal borough and polling place for the South division of the county, chiefly in Norfolk, but a small part is in Suffolk; the counties are divided by the Little Ouse, over which is a cast-iron bridge, erected by the corporation in 1829. The rivers Thet and Little Ouse join a little above the bridge. The town is the head of a union and county court district, in the rural deanery of Thetford and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich, 7 miles east-south-east from Brandon, 12 from Bury St. Edmunds, 23 from Ely, 31½ south-west from Norwich, 20½ south-east from Wymondham, 28 south-south-east from Lynn, 78 north-east from London by road and 95½ by rail: it is governed by a mayor, recorder, four aldermen and twelve councillors who form the Urban Sanitary Authority. The borough has a commission of the peace and separate court of quarter sessions. The town is lighted with gas. The Little Ouse is navigable by barges from Lynn to Thetford, by which coal and timber are imported, and corn, malt and wool exported. The Great Eastern railway have two stations here: one on the line from Ely and the other on the Thetford and Bury line which connects this place with Bury St. Edmunds. The borough formerly returned two members to Parliament; by the "Representation of the People Act, 1867," it was to have returned one, but the one member was lost on the passing of the "Representation of the People (Scotland) Act, 1868." The town consists of three parishes:—St. Mary, St. Peter and St. Cuthbert.

The church of St. Mary, situated on the Suffolk side, is a large and very handsome structure of flint with stone dressings restored in 1845; it is in the Norman and Perpendicular styles and consists of chancel, nave and lofty square tower with 6 bells; the west gallery has been removed, the east and west windows have been filled with stained glass, the former is very beautiful, subject, The Crucifixion, and was inserted by the family of the late rector, the Rev. William Collett M.A.; two other stained windows are placed in the nave, and the family of the late L. S. Bidwell esq. one of the oldest inhabitants of the town, have placed others in the chancel to his memory; the tomb of Sir Richard Fulmerston knt. anciently a benefactor of the town and founder of the Grammar School, was some years since removed, and the parts containing the inscription were placed against the south wall of the nave: in 1878 the nave was new roofed, at a cost of £500. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, yearly value £83, in the gift of trustees and held since 1862 by the Rev. Alfred Fowler Smith M.A., LL.D. of Pembroke College, Cambridge, and ad eundem Oxford, who is also preacher of the school and hospital. Connected with this church is a preachership, founded by the above Sir Richard Fulmerston and endowed by him with £95 per annum, now held by the Rev. Alfred Fowler Smith M.A., LL.D.

St. Cuthbert's church, situated near the Market place, was almost rebuilt in 1862; it is a structure of flint in the Late Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles; the chancel is separated from the nave by a beautiful oak screen. The register dates from the year 1672. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £90 in the gift of the Bishop of the diocese, and held since 1880, by the Rev. William George Norwood, of St. Bees.

St. Peter's. White Hart street, is built of cut flint, whence it was formerly called the "Black Church;" it is in the Decorated style, and consists of a chancel, nave and aisles; the tower was rebuilt in 1789, and contains a fine peal of 8 bells, which were re-hung in 1875 through the exertions of the late rector (Rev. R. Hay-Hill), at a cost of £40, nothing having previously been done since 1791, when the bells were placed in the belfry by Lord Petre. The register dates from the year 1642. The living is a rectory, yearly value £122, including 43 acres of glebe, in the gift of Alfred Marshall esq. and held since 1881, by the Rev. Philip Edmund Phelps M.A. Cantuar.

There are Baptist, Congregational, Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels, and a Friends' meeting-house, seldom used. The Catholic church dedicated to St. Mary,

This parish is contributory to Foulsham School Board sending 2 members; the children attend the Board school there erected in 1826, is in the London road, and has schools for 55 children connected with it.

The Cemetery, on the London road, established 1854, occupies about 3 acres of land, and has two mortuary chapels: it is under the control of a Burial Board of 18 members.

The Grammar school and hospital foundation, with endowment producing about £590 yearly, was founded by Act of Parliament in 1610, according to the last will and testament of Sir Richard Fulmerston knt.: the school-house was thoroughly restored in 1880, and forms part of the old Trinity church; one of the original arches is still in a good state of preservation; the residence for the masters was also rebuilt in the same year. The management of this ancient foundation is under twelve governors.

There is a fund for apprenticing out of Sir Joseph Williamson's Charity; it is governed by 15 trustees. There are other charities producing about £500 or £600 yearly.

The Guildhall, where the quarter sessions for the borough are held, is situated in the centre of the town, overlooking the Market place, which is encircled by an iron railing. Petty sessions for the borough are held at the Guildhall on Mondays. The Mechanics' Institution has a library of 1,700 volumes.

At the eastern part of the town are a few tenements occupied by the poor, on the site of Harbord Hospital, so called from their having been endowed by Sir Charles Harbord for 99 years, which time expired many years ago. In St. Mary's parish are also four almshouses, built chiefly of flint, with antique brick chimneys, which, as well as the Grammar school, bear the date 1610 and the name of their founder, Sir Richard Fulmerston knt.

In the town are a brewery, an extensive tannery and fellmongery, brick and lime kilns, also powerful water and steam mills (flour), several maltings, bone crushing, manure and chemical works, and Messrs. Charles Burrell and Sons, extensive iron foundry and agricultural implement manufactory and steam engine works, employing about 350 hands, and which is situated on the site of old St. Nicholas' church; also a manufactory of papier-mâché goods.

The market is held on Saturday for fish, meat and vegetables. There is a Lamb fair held here August 16th.

The gaol, enlarged in 1816, is a flint and stone building, but since the removal of the assizes to Norwich, in 1833, it now only a police station.

The King's House, in King street, stands on a slight eminence; it is flint and brick built, and bears the royal arms over the door: there is a lawn before the house, and beautiful gardens attached: it was formerly the residence of Queen Elizabeth and James I.; the last named gave it to Sir P. Wodehouse; it is now occupied by Cornell H. Fison esq.

In the parish of St. Mary, and on the Suffolk side of the river, are the remains of a monastery (St. Sepulchre's) the porter's gate is visible, as also a part of the church, now converted into a barn; it is called the "Canons" and is occupied by William Dalziel Mackenzie esq. J.P.: a great portion of the land is a rabbit warren, where thousands of rabbits are to be seen on the open ground: the particular breed most cultivated is here known as the "silver grey," although they appear nearly black; they are the most valuable to furriers.

Thetford formerly had twenty churches and eight monasteries, of which there are numerous ruins, and the surrounding country contains several "barrows." At the eastern extremity of the town is Castle Hill, a mound upwards of 1,000 feet in circumference at the base, supposed to be an ancient fortification of Roman or Saxon origin: its height is 100 feet, and the top, overlooking an immense tract of country, is crowned by five stately trees.

Thetford was a Roman station, and was for some time the see of the Bishop of the East Angles. In 1004 King Sweyn burned this place. Here was anciently a mint.

The principal landowners are William Dalziel Mackenzie

J.P. who is lord of the manor, Sir R. J. Buxton bart. D.L. and T. S. Bidwell esq.
The area is, St. Cuthbert's parish, 306 acres; rateable value, £4,332 10s.; St. Mary's, 4,620; rateable value, £3,944; St. Peter's, 2,370; rateable value, £7,785; combined rateable value of the borough, £16,062.

THOMPSON (or TOMPSON) is a parish 3 miles south from Watton and half a mile west from Stow-Bedon railway station and 10 west from Attleborough, in the Western division of the county, hundred and union of Wayland, Attleborough county court district, rural deanery of Breckles, and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. "The ancient family of Tompson of Tynemouth Castle (says Blomefield) is descended from the Tompsons surnamed of this town." In the time of Edward I. a small chantry was established here by the then lord of Tompson; Sir Thomas de Shardelow, fifty years after, gave the society a chantry house, called Tompson's College, an estate, and the advowson of the living. The College Farm still marks the site of the ancient residence of the chantry priests, and some oak stalls in the church show where they used to sit. The church of St. Martin, standing close to the road, is built of rubble: its date is apparently about 1300: it is in the Early English style and consists of chancel, nave, porch, transept and tower containing 3 bells: the windows of the chancel have beautiful tracery, now half blocked up: the south chapel appears to have been built about 1450, for the purpose of the chantry, and as a place of interment for the founder, Sir Thomas de Shardelow, and his family: the nave is fitted with oak benches, the carved poppy-heads of which have been painted white, according to village custom: here is a modern painting, "Jacob told of Joseph's Death": there are three sedilia and a piscina in the chancel: in the churchyard are the ruins of a north chapel or vestry. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £49, in the gift of the trustees of H. D. Hemsworth esq. and held since 1860 by the Rev. William Smyth Thorpe B.A. of Wadham College, Oxford, who resides at Shropham. The great and small tithes belonged to the College till the Dissolution, when they passed into private hands, and have since so continued. £31, rent of town lands, is divided between the church and the poor. The land chiefly belongs to Lord Walsingham, who is lord of the manor. The soil is light, with a clay or black gravel subsoil. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. There is a good deal of heath land uncultivated, and a mere called Tompson Water. The area is 2,890 acres; rateable value, £2,994; and the population in 1881 was 360.

THORNAGE is a parish 2½ miles south-west-by-west from Holt & 2½ from Melton Constable station, 12 west from Cromer and 10 east from Fakenham station, in the Northern division of the county, Holt hundred and county court district, Erpingham union, rural deanery of Holt, archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich, situated on the road from Holt to East Dereham. The church (name unknown), is a small plain building chiefly in the Early English style, having chancel, square embattled tower containing 1 bell, and south porch: there is a communion cup, dated 1456, given by John Butts and Margaret his wife; also an ancient oak table and a monument to Sir William Butts: and a stone to the memory of Lady Heigham, dated 1590. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a rectory, with Brinton annexed, joint yearly value £508, with residence and 35 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lord Hastings and held since 1863 by the Rev. Charles John Brereton B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. At the survey, William Beaufoe was lord of the manor, and held it in right of his church or see, then at Thetford; and Aylmar, Bishop of Elmham, possessed it by the same right, in King Edward's reign, as a manor. In the 35th of Henry III. (1251) Walter, Bishop of Norwich, lord of Thornage, had a charter of free warren: the manor remained with the see till the exchange of land made in the 27th of Henry VIII. between the King and the Bishop of Norwich, and was granted July 1, 1537, by that King, with the advowson, to William Butts M.D. his chief physician, in which family it continued till Ann, only daughter and heiress of Edmund Butts esq. brought it by marriage to Sir Nicholas Bacon bart. son and heir of Sir Nicholas, lord keeper of the great seal, and it remained in that family till sold, about 1710, by Sir Edmund Bacon bart. to Sir Jacob Astley bart. of Melton, ancestor of Lord Hastings, who is the present lord of the manor and chief landowner. Courts leet and baron are held once a year. The soil is mixed; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 1,266 acres; rateable value, £2,134; the population in 1881 was 327.

THORNHAM is a parish and village 20 miles north-east from Lynn and 5 east-north-east from Hunstanton railway station, in the Western division of the county, Smithdon hundred, Docking union, Little Walsingham county court district, Heacham rural deanery, Norfolk archdeaconry and Norwich diocese, situated on the German ocean and on the coast road from Wells to Lynn. The church of All Saints is a spacious structure of flint, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, lofty nave, with clerestory, aisles, large porch with chamber above, in which the vestry meetings are usually held, small vestry and an unfinished tower at the west end containing 1 bell: the clerestory windows are perfect: the nave is seated with thick oaken benches: the pulpit is also of oak, bearing date 1631: the lower portion of the old screen under the chancel arch still remains, on which are several painted figures, nearly obliterated: the piscina is in the usual place and the font is octagonal and raised: the chancel was restored in 1877, at a cost of £2,800, defrayed by Capt. Ames-Lyde, assisted by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The register dates from the year 1716. The living is a discharged vicarage, with Holme-next-the-Sea annexed, joint yearly value £420, with residence and 14

res of glebe, in the alternate gift of the Bishop of Norwich and Thomas L'Estrange Ewen esq. of the Rookery, Dedham, Essex, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Edward Ewen M.A. St. Peter's College, Cambridge. There are places of worship for Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists. The parish has the right of sending four children to Brancaster Free school. There are charities of £30 annual value for the benefit of the poor, together with about 29 acres of land reserved for fuel: also 8 acres of land for the repairs of the church. There is a lecture room in connection with the church. Here is a lime-kiln, and bricks are made in the parish. Mrs. Ames-Lyde is lady of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is partly loam and chalk; subsoil, brick earth and chalk. The crops are wheat, barley, oats, turnips, beans and mangold-wurtzel. The area is 2,154 acres of land and 780 of water: rateable value, £3,957; the population in 1881 was 653.

THORPE near Norwich (or THORPE ST. ANDREW) is a picturesque village and parish 2 miles east from Norwich, on the road to Yarmouth, with railway station at the junction of the Yarmouth and Lowestoft with the North Walsham lines of railway, and named the Whittingham Junction station, in the Southern division of the county, Blofield hundred and union, Norwich county court district, rural deanery of Blofield and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich, on the north bank of the river Yare, over which the Norwich and Yarmouth railway passes: here are several gentlemen's seats and villa residences, pleasantly situated on the side of a declivity overlooking a part of the city of Norwich, the railway and the river Yare. Part of Thorpe parish, called Thorpe Hamlet, is within the county of the city of Norwich, which see. The old parish church of St. Andrew has been dilapidated by faculty, and forms a picturesque ruin: here are many old monuments, some still remaining on the walls of the ruins, and others have been removed into the porch of the new tower: one, dated 1700, is to Peter Vertigans esq. A new church, St. Andrew, was erected in 1866 at the rear of the old building: it is a handsome flint building, with freestone dressings, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle and a tower with spire 150 feet high, which was completed in 1883. The register dates from the year 1642. The living is a rectory, nett yearly value £600, with residence, in the gift of William Birkbeck esq. and held since 1867 by the Rev. John Patteson M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, rural dean of Blofield. The rectory house was enlarged in 1867: it is a handsome red brick Elizabethan building. The Cemetery is situated about half a mile south of the village, covering an area of 2 acres: it contains a mortuary chapel. There is a reading room. The fuel allotment of 57 acres produces £75 yearly, and charities of about £8 yearly are distributed. The Bishop of Norwich had anciently a palace here. William Birkbeck esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor, the Earl of Rosebery and Sir H. J. Stracey bart. are the chief landowners. The soil is sandy and gravelly; subsoil, chalk and limestone. The area is 1,795 acres;

The living is a rectory, tithe rent charge £212 13s. with 6 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Thomas William Daniel esq. and held since 1862 by the Rev. John William Clapcott B.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford. Thrigby Hall, the seat of Thomas William Daniel esq. J.P. was rebuilt in 1876 of white brick with stone facings, on the site of an ancient manse: it stands in extensive grounds, containing many fine old trees, and an old yew fence of considerable length, branching off to the right and left, about 4 yards wide and 9 feet high. A large agricultural building has been erected by T. W. Daniel esq. on his farm for the breeding of pedigree stock. Thomas W. Daniel esq. is lord of the manor and owner of the land, with the exception of one farm, which belongs to the trustees of Warne's charity. The soil is mixed; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 575 acres; rateable value, £1,235; and the population in 1881 was 670.

TITCHWELL is a parish and village 5½ miles west-by-north from Burnham Market railway station and 21 from Lynn, in the Western division of the county, Smithdon hundred, Docking union, Little Walsingham county court district, Heacham rural deanery, Norfolk archdeaconry and Norwich diocese: it is situated near the German ocean and the coast road from Lynn to Wells. The church of St. Mary is an old building of flint, in the Perpendicular style, consists of chancel, nave and porch, with a round Norman tower at the west end surmounted by a short spire of lead covered with lead, with a cross at the top and a crown thorns below it. The register dates from the year 1558. There are a few entries transcribed as far back as 1464. The living is a rectory, yearly value £413, with a residence in the collegiate style, and 20 acres of glebe, in the gift of John Colledge and held since 1859 by the Rev. Edward Seymour Stocker M.A. of the University of Durham, who resides at 32 Trebovir road, South Kensington; the Rev. John Tomfield Whaley is the curate in charge. This parish has the right of sending four boys to the Free Foundation School at Branchester. There are charities of about £11 yearly value, and 8½ acres of land called church land, left for repairing and beautifying the church. At the east end of the village is the shaft of an ancient cross supposed to have been a station on the way to Walsingham Abbey. The lords of the manor are Magdalen College, Oxford; and the chief landowner is William Charles Dodman esq. The soil on the upper side of the parish is of a light chalky nature, and strong bordering on the coast; subsoil, chalk. The crops are wheat, barley, turnips, mangolds and beans. The area is 1,452 acres of land and 175 water; rateable value, £2,047; the population in 1881 was 119. In 1786 about 300 acres of salt marsh were gained from the sea by embankment.

TRIMINGHAM is a parish 5 miles south-east from Cromer and 6 north from North Walsham, situated on the sea coast, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of North Erpingham, union of Erpingham, North Walsham county court district, rural deanery of Repps, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. John, in the Perpendicular style, is an ancient structure of flint, restored in 1859 through the exertions of the Rev. A. B. Cross, the then rector, who collected the sum of £1,500, the entire cost of restoration: it consists of a chancel, nave, and a low square tower with 1 bell: the carved oak screen which separates the chancel from the nave is much admired by antiquarians. The register dates from the year 1748. The living is a rectory, yearly value about £135, in the gift of the Duchy of Lancaster and now (1883) vacant. The parish has been much diminished by the encroachments of the sea: since 1840 two farmhouses have been washed away: there were several land slips during the year 1868, part of the land absorbed was glebe. Thomas Fowell Buxton esq. is constructing seven groins or breakwaters along the Trimmingham beach at his own expense to prevent the recurrence of encroachments. On a lofty hill in the parish, commanding an extensive view of the sea and surrounding country, are the ruins of an old beacon. Lord Sutfield is lord of the manor. The principal landowner is Thomas Fowell Buxton esq. The soil is mixed; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 485 acres of land and 145 of water; rateable value, £814; and the population in 1881 was 194.

UPWELL is a large village and very extensive parish, formerly a market town, 4 miles south from the Etneth station, and  $6\frac{1}{2}$  south-east from the Wisbech station of the Great Eastern railway, which company is constructing a steam tramway for the conveyance of goods and passengers between here and Wisbech; it is partly in the hundred of Wisbech, in the Isle of Ely, and a large portion in the hundred of Clackclose, county of Norfolk, union and county court district of Wisbech, rural deanery of Fincham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. Domesday Book informs us that it belonged, with Outwell, to the Abbey of Ramsey, and was at that period a place of some note: it is situated on either side of the river Nene, which divides the shires. The following relates only to the portion in Norfolk: the Cambridgeshire portion of this parish is given in Kelly's Directory of that county, of which Christchurch, a separate ecclesiastical parish, forms part. The church of St. Peter is a large and handsome stone building, in the Perpendicular style, with some traces of Early Norman, having chancel, nave with clerestory, aisles, a square tower with octagonal top containing 6 bells, south porch organ, and clock, and a beautiful stained east window. The register dates from the year 1650. The living is a rectory, yearly value £3,058, with residence, in the gift of Charles Watson Townley esq. and held since 1879 by the Rev. John Beauvoir Dalison M.A. of Merton College, Oxford. There are chapels for Wesleyans, Baptists and Primitive Methodists. The Almshouses were erected by the late James Lee, in 1819, and are for five poor widows. The Public Hall was erected by a limited company: in it are held meetings, concerts and lectures; there is also an Odd Fellows' Lodge (Manchester Unity) held fortnightly on Wednesdays. The fire engine was presented to the parish by the late Mr. James Lee; it is manned by volunteers, and the keys of the engine house are kept by Mr. William Bradfield. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor of Wisbech Barton which extends into this parish, and C. W. Townley esq. is lord of the manor of Beaupré Hall. The principal landowners are C. W. Townley, George Croft Huddleston, Tristram Fredk. Croft Huddleston, Jackson Hunt esqrs. the Rev. John Fenwick, the representatives of the late Hanslip Palmer, John Cabread Jones, Thomas Wright esqrs. Mrs. Gambier, Sir J. B. Byles, Randle Jackson and Richard J. W. Orton esqrs. The soil is loamy, in many parts highly fertile, and the subsoil clay. The crops are wheat, potatoes, peas, beans and oats, with other produce. The area is 16,454 acres; rateable value of Norfolk portion £15,665; the population of the entire parish in 1881 was 3,440, viz., in Norfolk, 2,083; Cambridgeshire, 1,357.

Parish Clerk, Benjamin Webber.

Nordelph, or Northdelph, is a fen hamlet 4 miles west from Downham, and about the same distance from Upwell village, and is the converging point of five different parishes, viz. Downham, Denver, Upwell, Outwell and Stow Bardolph: it is intersected by the river Nene, over which there is an iron bridge. Holy Trinity church, erected by the Rev. William Gale Townley M.A. in 1865, consists of a chancel with stained east window, nave, vestry and south porch with 1 bell, and is a chapel of ease to the parish church: the Rev. Samuel Lee Coverley B.A. of University College, Durham, is curate in charge. There is a Wesleyan chapel, and a Wesleyan Reformed chapel.

THREE HOLES is 2 miles south.

WABOURNE (or WEYBOURNE), the latter is the modern spelling) is a parish on the sea-coast, about 4 miles north-east from Holt station, 9 west from Cromer and 14 east from Wells, in the northern division of the county, Erpingham union and Holt county court district. The village is picturesquely situated in a basin half a mile from the sea. Within a mile from the parish it is bounded to the south-west and partly to the east by a range of sand hills, two hundred feet above sea level, covered alternately by plantations, furze and heather. Here the range of cliffs forming a barrier to the North Sea for a part of North Norfolk end, and the salt marshes begin and continue to Hunstanton. The coast line has now a very small curve, owing to the encroachments of the sea: there is no doubt but that formerly it had a greater outward curve forming an open bay or roadstead called Waborne Hope, where mediæval coasting vessels, to avoid the sands and shoals to the west, steered out to sea to make the Humber or east coast of Yorkshire. The parish church of All Saints was originally Saxon and was enlarged at the end of the fourteenth century: the square embattled tower and porch are of much later date; it now consists of chancel and nave only. The register dates from the year 1727. The living is a donative, yearly value £50, in the gift of the Earl of Orford and held since 1867 by the Rev. William Bosworth, who is also rector of, and resides at Beeston Regis: the tithes are commuted at £300. A portion of this parish was held by Hacon, son of Swan, eldest son of Earl Godwin, and to this family Wabourne is in all probability indebted for the Saxon church, a part of the tower and west end of which still remain; the portion held by Hacon was given by William to Hugh de Lupus, the Conqueror's half-sister's son, created by him Earl of Chester; Earl Hugh enfeoffed Ralph of it—Sir Ralph (as his father was) Meinie Waring or Manwaring. In the reign of King John, Sir Ralph Meinilwaring married Amicia, daughter of Hugh Kivileoc, Earl of Chester: this Ralph, Chief Justice of Chester, appears to have founded the priory at Wabourne for Augustine canons, the cloisters being on the north side of the Saxon church and the priory church at the east end of it: although the priory was subsequently enlarged and again reduced before the Reformation it never appeared to have been of any great consequence; it is valued in Speed at £28 7s. 2d. Here are a brewery, fish curing house, coast guard station, and two or three small crab or lobster boats. The Earl of Orford, who is lord of the manor, and William Johnson, Jennis Bolding and William Thomas Bird esqrs. are the principal landowners. The soil is very variable; subsoil, sand, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and grass. This parish contains 1,614 acres, of which 1,168 are arable pasture and meadow, and the remainder heath and woodland; rateable value, £1,810; the population in 1881 was 232.

The church of All Saints is a fine building, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel and nave, with a round tower containing 3 bells. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a rectory (with the sinecure rectory of Wacton Parva annexed), joint yearly value £350, with 30 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Mrs. E. T. Chadwick and held since 1881 by the Rev. Edward Taylor Chadwick. In 1711 Mrs. Elizabeth Bayspoole left £2 12s. yearly, to be given to the poor of this parish, which is now distributed on alternate

WALPOLE ST. The church of St. Andrew, a spacious structure in the Early Perpendicular style consists of chancel, nave, aisles and a square tower containing 5 bells: In the south aisle hangs a large picture, by an Italian master, brought from Italy by Lord Coleraine: on the south side of the chancel arch is an elegant stone bracket, supposed to have been for the gospelier: there is also a curious cell built in the buttress of the tower, for which no object can be assigned. The register dates from the year 1653; baptisms, 1654. The living is a vicarage, commuted at £1,259 yearly, in the gift of Joseph P. Townsend esq. and held by the Rev. Demetrius Panaghis Calliphronas M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, by whom a vicarage house has been purchased and presented to the living. The Dole lands, of 85 acres and 22 houses, produce £194 yearly, which is for uses of the poor. In 1862 the Charity Commissioners erected here almshouses for three poor widows, who each receive 4s. 6d. a week and two tons of coal annually. It was in the immediate locality that the English monarch King John lost the baggage of his army in attempting to cross the Wash. Edward Hugh Jackson esq. is lord of the manor of Walpole Colville, also of the manors of Walpole Colerane and Walpole Eldred, and the principal landowners are the Crown and John and Mrs. Charles Boon. The soil is clay and loam. The chief crops are wheat and beans. The area is 2,364 acres of land and 1,130 water; rateable value, £4,760; and the population in 1881 was 686.

CROSS KEYS is a hamlet about a quarter of a mile from the railway station. The mission church of St. Helen's was erected in 1881 at a cost of about £800: it is a red brick and stone building, having a porch on the north side and a turret containing 1 bell: the seats, which are for 150 persons, are mostly free: here is also a Primitive Methodist chapel.

WALPOLE ST. PETER is a village and extensive parish 8 miles south-west from Lynn and 3 south from Walpole station, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Freebridge Marshland, union and county court district of Wisbech, rural deanery of Lynn Marshland and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Peter is very handsome, in the Early English and Decorated styles: it was erected in the reign of Henry VI. and consists of chancel, nave, aisles and a fine embattled tower containing 6 bells: there are 13 clerestory windows on each side and two at the east end, and some very fine carved oak benches. There has been from time immemorial a footpath through the churchyard, and when the present church was built, the east end going to the very verge of the churchyard, and the parishioners not being willing to give up their footpath, the difficulty was overcome by making a vaulted way under the chancel, which causes the communion table to be approached by a flight of ten steps. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a rectory with the chapelry of St. Edmund annexed, tithes commuted at £1,187 yearly, with residence and 13 acres of glebe in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1853 by the Rev. Philip Salisbury Bagge M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. At Walpole Highway, 2 miles south, is St. Edmund's, a handsome structure in the Norman style, erected at a cost of about £1,600: the four chancel windows are stained, representing Our Saviour, St. Edmund, St. Peter and St. Catharine: it has 2 bells. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels here. The late Miss Shanley, of Terrington St. John, erected, in 1872, six handsome almshouses for six poor women, who receive 5s. weekly. The rent of the Dole lands of 41 acres is distributed in money. The sea-wall, built by the Romans called the Roman Bank, crosses this parish, and antiquities have been found in it. Edward Hugh Jackson esq. is lord of the manor of Walpole Colville; also of the manors of Walpole Colerane and Walpole Eldred. Edward Trafford and Joseph P. Townsend esqs. are principal landowners. The soil is strong clay; subsoil, strong clay. The chief crops are oats, wheat, beans and barley. The area is 6,982 acres; rateable value, £12,199, and the population in 1881 was 1,137.

NORTH WALSHAM is a parish and market town and station on the Great Eastern line from Norwich to Cromer, and also one on the Eastern and Midlands railway and is a polling-place for the Northern division of the county, in Erpingham union, North Erpingham hundred, North Walsham county court district, rural deanery of Waxham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich: it is 14½ miles north from Norwich, 25 north-west from Yarmouth and 128 from London, pleasantly situated on an eminence between the rivers Ant and Bure: it is paved and lighted with gas, and governed by a Local Board of Health of 12 members. The Dilham and North Walsham canal passes through and terminates at Antingham. The church of St. Nicholas is an ancient building, which has been restored, at a cost of about £5,000: it consists of chancel with chancel aisles, nave, aisles and south porch, which is of flint and stone: the spandrels of the entrance arch bear the arms of John de Gaunt and of St. Benet's Abbey: on the north side of the chancel is a monument to Sir William Paston, ob. 1608: the font has a cover of carved oak, rising in a succession of arches, buttresses and pinnacles in four tiers, the whole surmounted by a pelican; through the liberality of W. Forster esq. of Aylsham, a large and handsome window, of the Decorated style, filled with cathedral glass, has been inserted at the east end, and a reredos and communion-table presented to the church: the reredos, which is divided into five compartments, is of Caen stone, and the arcade is supported by sixteen polished Rosso marble shafts, the spandrels being richly inlaid with Devonshire green, antico, alabaster and jewels: carved diaper relieves the surface of the panels, and the centre one contains a cross of black polished marble, having a base of polished grey Ipsepen marble: the communion-table is of oak, and its brackets are beautifully carved with representations of the grape, wheat, barley, wild convolvulus and other foliage, interspersed with some exquisite specimens of small birds; a rich velvet embroidered cloth covers the table, and is the gift of the same gentleman, who has also furnished the sacristarium with two elegant gas standards: Mrs. Martin Shephard, the lay impropriator, at a cost of £510, has provided the chancel with a new roof of English oak, covered with lead, similar in its character to the old roof, and one bay of the nave and two bays of the north aisle were, at the same time, newly roofed, at an expense of £290, by subscription: an organ has been erected, at a cost of £487, and is placed in the north chancel aisle; its case is of plain pine wood, having an ornamental diapered front. The register dates from the year 1557. The living is a vicarage, with the rectory of Antingham St. Margaret annexed, joint value £415, with 2 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich, and held since 1874 by the Rev. John Smith Owen M.A., LL.D. of Trinity College, Dublin. In this parish are Congregational, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Congregational chapel, erected in 1857, at a cost of about £1,000, is a handsome Gothic structure of flint, with stone facings. There are a few charities, the funds of which are derived from the rental of an allotment of 34 acres to the poor, the amount (£60) being distributed in coals. Here are two agricultural implement manufactories. An Agricultural Show is held annually, and there is a Horticultural Society. The market is on Thursday, chiefly for corn. The market cross was built by Bishop Thirlby in the reign of Edward VI. and repaired by Bishop Redman in 1690, and again restored in 1856, and also in 1882. On North Walsham Heath, beside the road to the city of Norwich, is a stone cross, said to mark the field of battle in 1381, when the rebels, headed by John Leister, a dyer of Norwich, were defeated by Henry Spencer, the warlike Bishop of Norwich. The White Horse Spa and Blue Bell commons, to the north-east of the town, were enclosed about the year 1830, and many houses have since been built upon them. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are the lords of the manor; and Lord Suffield, Mrs. Petre and R. S. Baker esq. are the chief landowners. The parish comprises an area of 4,252 acres; rateable value, £13,259; and in 1881 the population was 3,234.

SCHOOLS:—

A Free Grammar school was founded & endowed in 1606, by Sir William Paston, for 40 sons of the inhabitants of the hundreds of Tunstead, Happing, North Erpingham, & East & West Flegg: it is situated at the entrance of the town from Norwich, & was rebuilt in 1765: the late Lord Nelson, Archbishop Tenison & other eminent men, were educated here: a good library, left by the Rev. Richard Berney, was placed, by his desire, in the school, for the use of the students & clergy of this neighbourhood. The income is £270 yearly, derived from 217 acres of land. A scheme for the management of the school was approved by the late Endowed School Commission, under which the boys receive a sound, moral & religious education, adapted to the requirements of the present day; & it includes all the usual subjects taught in first class schools; attention is given also to agricultural subjects in connection with South Kensington, & boys examined yearly by Government in agriculture & chemistry: the school fees vary from £4 to £8 a year, according to age, & boarders are received at £30 yearly; the school buildings have been put into complete repair, & a sick dormitory has been erected: there are several foundation scholarships, the holders of which are exempt from school fees, & the Paston Scholarships are of £50 yearly for three years, to enable the holder to pursue his studies at one of the larger schools, or to assist him in acquiring a profession: the Rev. Henry Wimble M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford, is head master; G. Kildare Dobbs, London University, second master; A. M. Dupré B.A. Oxon, third master; Mons. Carlier, French & German master; Horace Hill Mus.D. Cantab. music master; E. Minns, drawing master; Sergeant-Major Gibbons, drill master

A School Board of 5 members was formed here in 1871; Benjamin Scott, clerk; handsome schools, to hold 500 children, have been erected, from designs by Mr. Bottle, architect, of Great Yarmouth, of red brick with Bath stone dressings, in the Domestic Gothic style, & the entire cost was £3,500. The old Theatre has been converted into a National school, capable of holding between 200 & 300 children, & is now used as a Sunday school & for parochial meetings. SOUTH WALSHAM is divided into two parishes, viz. St. Mary and St. Lawrence,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  miles from Lingwood station on the Great Eastern railway from Norwich to Yarmouth, 10 north-east from Norwich, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Walsham, union of Blofeld, county court district of Norwich, rural deanery of Blofeld, and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Mary is a fine old flint and rubble building, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and square tower with 5 bells. The register dates from the year 1550. The living is a discharged vicarage, in the gift of the trustees of the Old Men's Norwich Hospital; the tithe allotment is £162 6s. to the vicar; the glebe land is 32a. 2r. 23p.; the Rev. Waldo Cholmeley, of St. Bees, has been vicar since 1865. The church of St. Lawrence was burnt down in 1827: the tower is now a ruin: the chancel was repaired and opened for divine service in 1832. The register dates from 1550. The living is a rectory, in the gift of Queens' College, Cambridge; the tithe allotment to the rector is £511 10s. and there are 50a. 2r. 33p. of glebe land and held since 1858 by the Rev. George Cox Pollard M.A. formerly fellow of Queens' College. Here is a chapel for Primitive Methodists. Harrold's charity of £22 yearly is for apprenticing; the poor's allotment of 44 acres produces £40 yearly. Here are two broads of 49 acres, owned by the trustees of the late H. N. Burroughes esq. and W. H. Jary esq. The trustees of the late H. N. Burroughes esq. and the Rev. George Cox Pollard are lords of the manor. The landowners are the trustees of the late H. N. Burroughes esq. and W. H. Jary esq. J.P. The soil is good mixed; subsoil, chalk, stone, sand and clay. The chief crops are turnips and cereals. The area of the two parishes is 3,149 acres; rateable value, of St. Mary's, £2,236; St. Lawrence, £3,238; and the population in 1881 was 369 in St. Mary's and 227 in St. Lawrence.

NEW WALSINGHAM (or LITTLE WALSINGHAM)

is a parish and union town, head of a county court district and station on the East Dereham and Wells branch of the Great Eastern railway; it is on the Stiffkey river, and is 5 miles south-east-by-east from Wells, 5½ north-by-east from Fakenham, 27 north-west from Norwich and 113 from London, in the Northern division of the county, North Greenhoe hundred, rural deanery of Walsingham and arch-deaconry and diocese of Norwich. The parish church of St. Mary is a noble cruciform stone building, in the Perpendicular style: it has a deep chancel, nave with clerestory and aisles, and a tower with a slender spire and 5 bells: the south transept forms the organ chamber: in the north transept are marble and alabaster monuments to the Sidney family, dated 1612, the last of whom disposed of the property to the Lee-Warners, ancestors of its present proprietor, about 200 years ago: there are also tablets in memory of several members of the Lee-Warner family: the north transept contains the entrance to a rood staircase: there is also a carved screen and a piscina: the now much-mutilated font is supposed to have been one of the most artistic Perpendicular specimens in England and a restored model of it is exhibited in the Mediaeval Court of the Crystal Palace; its shape is octagonal, with richly-sculptured panels, representing the Seven Sacraments of the Catholic Church and the Crucifixion, and around the shaft are figures of the Four Evangelists and other saints, the whole standing upon a pediment of three steps in the form of a Maltese cross: the church was partially restored in 1861 at a cost of £1,700, and many additional free seats obtained. The register commences in 1558. The living is a vicarage (with that of Houghton-in-the-Dale annexed), joint yearly value £280 with residence, in the gift of Henry James Lee-Warner esq., J.P., D.L. and held since 1882 by the Rev. George Ratcliffe Woodward M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. The Vicarage house, erected in 1839 and since enlarged, is a handsome building, standing in about three acres of well-wooded and ornamental grounds, partly in the parish of Old Walsingham. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels here. There are eight almshouses and various legacies left for the relief of the poor inhabitants, amounting to about £230 a year, also a charity founded by Lady Mary Townshend for binding apprentices who are orphans, amounting to £30 yearly, distributed by 12 trustees, comprising the vicars of Old and New Walsingham, the guardians of the poor of New Walsingham (ex officio) and others. There is also a fuel allotment producing £35 yearly; the interest of £50, left in 1738, distributed in bread to 24 poor persons, and a charity of £100 left in 1827, producing £3 yearly, for four poor widows of labouring men. A sum of £2 was also left by Philip Brown in 1638, to be paid to the minister, on condition that he preached a commemoration sermon once a year. Reading rooms which were established in 1866 are well attended, and supplied with London newspapers and periodicals. The market has been discontinued, but a fair is held on the second Monday after Whit-Monday, and statute fairs on the Fridays before and after Michaelmas Day. There are ruins of a grey friary, founded by Elizabeth de Burgh, Countess of Clare in the fifteenth century, and an hospital for lepers occupied the site of the present police station, which is also the site of the Old Bridewell. The town was formerly famous for its priory of Augustine canons, founded by Geoffrey de Faverche in the eleventh century, on the site of a small chapel erected by his mother in honour of the Virgin Mary, similar in design to the Sancta Casa of Nazareth; it was a most noted place of pilgrimage, kings and queens of England and distinguished foreigners of all Europe resorted hither to pay their devotions at the shrine of Our Lady of Walsingham, guided by the "Milky Way," which is even now sometimes spoken of as "The Walsingham Way": the last regal devotee was Henry VIII. in the second year of his reign, who walked barefoot from the village of Barsham; a little later, however, he caused the image of Our Lady of Walsingham to be burnt at Chelsea: the ruins of this once wealthy establishment, which exhibit every style of English Gothic architecture, now consist of the west entrance gateway, a lofty arch 60 feet high, formerly the east end of the church, a Norman arch leading to a stone bath and two wells called the Wishing Wells, from the legend that persons drinking their waters will obtain any wish made when they do so, and also some fine lancet arches and part of the refectory, comprising the west window, four Decorated windows and a reading pulpit, approached by stone steps in the wall. Walsingham Abbey, a large and ancient building standing in a well wooded park of about fifty acres, is now the seat of Henry James Lee-Warner esq. M.A., D.L., J.P.: the grounds are very beautiful, and are open by the permission of the owner to the public, on application at the lodge, every Wednesday. Henry James Lee-Warner esq. is lord of the manor and owner of all the land in the parish, which comprises an area of 952 acres; rateable value, £3,341; the population in 1881 was 1,016.

Parish Clerk, James Friday Kingstead.

SCHOOLS:—

The Free Grammar school which is under the management of trustees was founded in 1639, in accordance with directions left by Richard Bond; a large school room has been erected: the head master's house adjoins the school, which is conducted according to a scheme drawn up by the Court of Chancery in 1861; the instructions to be given to the scholars must include "the Greek & Latin languages (when required by the parents), algebra, arithmetic, general English literature & composition, sacred & profane history, geography, reading, writing & also such other languages, arts & sciences as the trustees may from time to time direct; religious instruction according to the doctrines & discipline of the Church of England;" the school was endowed with a sum with which a farm was purchased, situated at Great Snoring & let at the reduced yearly rent of £137. Mr. Richard Cowburn is clerk to the trustees: head master, W. Shaw Hayler F.E.I.S. 25 boys in school, about half foundation scholars admitted after examination. The school has for some time been limited to a few boys, but under the new master the school is rapidly increasing

OLD or GREAT WALSINGHAM is a parish and village one mile north-east from New Walsingham station, in the North division of the county, North Greenhoe hundred, Walsingham county court district and union, situated on the Stiff key river. The church of St. Peter is an ancient stone and flint building, of the Decorated period, having nave with clerestory and aisles, south porch, and tower containing 3 bells; the pulpit dates from 1613; there is a piscina in the east end of each aisle: in 1870 a vestry was erected, at the expense of the Rev. John Lee-Warner. Here was formerly another church, dedicated to All Saints, and standing a little north of St. Peter's: its ruins are still traceable in a field adjoining Westgate House, occupied by Mr. John Howell. The register dates from the year 1564. The living is a donative, in the gift of Henry James Lee-Warner esq. and held since 1846 by the Rev. John Lee-Warner, of St. Bees. Roman antiquities, chiefly urns and sepulchral remains have been found here. Mr. J. J.

WALSOKEN is a parish adjoining Wisbech, from which it is separated by a small stream; the part which is adjacent to Wisbech is called NEW WALSOKEN, and has extended very much recently; it is in the Western division of the county, hundred of Freebridge Marshland, union and county court district of Wisbech, rural deanery of Lynn, and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich, and is governed by a Local Board of Health of 6 members. The nearest railway station is Wisbech (Great Eastern, distant about a quarter of a mile, and Midland, about three-quarters of a mile); the Emneth station is in this parish, and is about 3 miles from the church. The church of All Saints, situated a little off the high road, is a very old and large stone building in the Norman style, and consists of chancel, nave, separated from the aisles by handsome stone Norman colonnades and square tower with spire and 6 bells: the tower is handsomely decorated with geometrical figures, and the west door is particularly noticeable for its geometrical lines and carvings: the sittings are open, and the screen remarkably fine: in the chancel is a stained memorial window to Richard Young esq. formerly member for North Cambridgeshire: one acre of glebe land was added to the churchyard in 1883, and the whole placed under the control of the Burial Board. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, yearly value £1,268, with residence and 30 acres of glebe, in the gift of G. Gilpin esq. and held since 1871 by the Rev. John Young. Here is a chapel for the Primitive Methodists. The charities amount to £57, which is distributed yearly. Frederic Morehouse Metcalfe esq. J.P. of Ingleshorpe Hall, Emneth, is lord of the manor of Walsoken Metcalfe; William Goddard Jackson esq. is lord of the manor of Walsoken Popenhoe; and Francis and Edward Hugh Jackson esqs. lords of the manor of Walsoken Colerane. The soil is loam; subsoil clay. The chief crops Cornish's iron foundry and agricultural implement works are situated here. Henry James Lee-Warner esq. is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is chalk; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 2,170 acres; rateable value, £4,258; the population in 1881 was 452.

WEST WALTON is a parish and village, 3 miles northeast from Wisbech and 12 south-west from Lynn, in the Western division of the county, Freebridge Marshland hundred, union and county court district of Wisbech, rural deanery of Lynn and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich, situated on the river Nene, which here divides this county from Cambridgeshire. The Midland Railway Company have a station on the Cambridgeshire side of the river, called Ferry station, where there is a ferry over. The Great Eastern railway has a station at Smeeth, about 5 miles from the church. The church of St. Mary, built about the year 1240, is very handsome, in the Early English style, comprising chancel, nave, aisles and tower detached and about 60 feet from the body of the church, forming a grand lychgate entrance to the church yard; it contains 5 bells and is remarkable for its extraordinarily chaste proportions:
 there is an entrance porch on the south side, the antiquity and beauty of which are remarkable; and there are also doors at the west and north sides, both of which are tastefully carved; the nave is separated from the aisles by handsome arcaded stone colonnades: the church is at presented very much in need of repair. The register dates from the year 1576. The living is a consolidated rectory, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, commuted at £1,374 yearly, with 2 acres of glebe, and held since 1873 by the Rev.

 Walter Elliott Browne, of the London University. There is also a Mission church, licensed for public worship, situated 1½ miles from the church, at the Fen end. The Baptists have a chapel at the Fen end, and the Primitive Methodists one at the Church end of the parish. The poor have the benefit of a charity called the Poor estate, consisting of 26 acres, which produced in 1882 the sum of £115, which is distributed in money. Edward Hugh Jackson is lord of the manor of West Walton Colerane, and also of the manors of West Walton-cum-Membris, and of the manor of West Walton Colville. The principal landowners are Messrs.
 Edward William and William Henry Trafford, Joseph
 Johnson and Edward Southwell Trafford. The soil is loam subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, peas, beans and potatoes; there is also much pasture land. The area is 5,223 acres; rateable value, £9,244; the population in 1881 was 860.

WARHAM ALL SAINTS is a parish situated near the sea shore 2 miles south-by-east from Wells and 3½ north from Walsingham, in the Northern division of the county, North Greenhoe hundred, Walsingham union and county court district, rural deanery of Walsingham and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of All saints is a flint building, somewhat in the Decorated style, with Perpendicular windows, and comprises chancel, nave and transepts, and a small bell gable with 1 bell: there are two brasses, one dated 1474, to William Rokeland esq. and one, dated 1650, to some members of the Framlingham family; the church was formerly a large edifice: portions of a massive tower still remain, and the arches of the ancient aisles are yet to be traced in the north and south walls of the present building: the latter was restored, re-seated, and fine carved oak pulpit added in 1877, at an entire cost of £1,200, collected by public subscription. The register dates from the year 1553. The living is a rectory, with dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin, but all traces of its site are lost. Near the Stiffkey rivulet is a fine specimen of a Danish camp, having a triple fosse, with an area of 9 acres. Here are also the remains of the ruins of a large hall, once the residence of the Turner family, the former proprietors of the manor, from whom it was purchased by the late Earl of Leicester, who pulled down the hall and erected a farmhouse near its site. The Earl of Leicester is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The land is of a rich, loamy nature, producing excellent crops of wheat, oats and barley, and green crops generally; the subsoil is partly on the chalk formation. The area is 2,056 acres of land and 1,010 of water; rateable value, £2,063; the population in 1881 was 67.—Letters through Wells, the nearest money order & telegraph office

WATTON is a parish, small market town, polling place for the Western division of the county and station on the Great Eastern, Thetford and Watton railway. The town is situated just within the woodland district but near the open part, in a remarkably healthy and fertile country 10 miles south from East Dereham, and 10 south-east from Swaffham, 21 west-by-south from Norwich, and 96 from London, in Wayland hundred and union, Attleborough county court district, rural deanery of Breccles, and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich: this is a place of considerable trade, forming, as it does, a kind of little metropolis of a number of surrounding parishes. There is a quaint old rebus or device on the clock-house, expressive of the name of this town: it consists of a W, a hare, and a tun; a hare was often called by the country people a "Wat," which joined with "tun," makes, in the conceit of early times, "Watton." The town chiefly consists of one widestreet, and is lighted with gas. The Watton and Swaffham line between these towns completes the railway communication between Lynn and Thetford. The church of St. Mary, partly Norman and partly Gothic, was built close to the old manor house of Watton Hall (though the latter is now no longer to be seen), and stands some little distance to the east end of the town: it was built about the time of Henry I. and was originally dedicated to St. Giles, though afterwards it was re-dedicated to St. Mary: the tower is round at the base, with an octagonal top and contains 3 large bells: the church has been thoroughly restored, the floor lowered to the original level and open benches placed throughout instead of the old pews; a handsome oak screen, pulpit and lectern were introduced, and a vestry built; an organ with three manuals and 2½ octaves of pedals was also erected and a beautiful reading desk has since been added: a curious old poor-box is preserved bearing the date of 1552: over the chancel arch, outside the church, is a beautiful and perfect specimen of a crucifix, carved in stone, which was originally placed over the north porch: there are several monuments to the families of Wodehouse, Samuel, Hammond, Raby and Hicks: six of the windows are stained, two having been presented by the Rev. W. C. Hodgson, a former vicar. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a discharged vicarage, yearly value, £100 with residence, and 12A. 0R. 19P. of glebe, in the gift of Joseph Trueman Mills esq. of Clermont, Little Cressingham, and held since 1867 by the Rev. Thomas Brookes Wrenford, of St. Bees. The vicarage house and grounds have been greatly enlarged and improved. In the town are almshouses for four poor widows, founded in 1612 by Edward Goffe, who endowed them with a yearly rent charge of £5; they were rebuilt in 1820 by R. Harvey esq. Almshouses were also built by Mr. Edward Stephens, of Watton, who in 1840 conveyed them to trustees for the benefit of four poor married couples of the ages of sixty years, who have resided in the parish for not less than thirty years. In the year 1870 a scheme for the regulation of certain Watton charities was obtained from the Charity Commissioners, through the instrumentality of the vicar: it provides that certain land in the parish, allotted under the Watton Enclosure Act 1802, amounting to about 60A. 1R. 28P. with the buildings thereon, and let for £138 a year, shall be held by the lord of the manor, the vicar, churchwardens, and overseers, and two others, in trust for the benefit of such poor and deserving inhabitants of Watton as they may from time to time select: the income of the charities is usually expended in the purchase of coals and bread, but the trustees have power also to supply the deserving poor with clothes, bedding, medical and other aid in sickness, and with pecuniary aid in special cases. This charity is called "The Poor's Allotment Charity:" by the same scheme certain land in the parish belonging to the church, amounting to about 12A. 1R. 26P. with the buildings thereon, and let for £51 a year, was settled upon the vicar and churchwardens, in trust to apply the income towards providing for the maintenance, repairs; and insurance against fire of the parish church, and towards defraying the other expenses usually provided for by a church-rate, or legally payable thereout: this charity is called in the scheme "The Church Lands Charity." The Wayland Hall, a building of brick and stone in the style prevailing in the time of Henry VII. was built by shareholders, in 1853, in the Market place, and is of great benefit to the town and neighbourhood: it comprises a corn hall, magistrates' rooms, library and committee rooms: it has a roof of timber work, with hammer-beams and spandrels, with open tracery, and the windows are framed so as to be in perfect keeping with the general character of the edifice: it was built from the designs of Mr. C. Lamb. In 1204 a writ was brought to inquire whether the market, granted to John de Vaux, who held the manor of Watton Hall, was not prejudicial to the market of Saham, and it being found to be so, the writ was recalled; but Oliver de Vaux, at the end of the same year, obtained a new charter, under which the market was to be held every Wednesday, and it still continues to be held on the same day. The Railway Hotel, a commodious building facing the station, the George and the Crown are the principal hotels. A County Police Station was built in 1856, at the junction of the Norwich and Thetford roads, at which there is stationed an inspector and one constable. Messrs. Gurneys and Co. of Norwich, have a branch bank here. On the south side of the town is Wayland (or Wailing) Wood, the property of Lord Walsingham, of Merton Hall: it deserves notice, inasmuch as it is confidently believed by the country people to have been the scene of the murder of "The Babes in the Wood" by their cruel uncle: a carved mantelshelf displaying the story, and forming a part of a very ancient building in this wood, probably gave rise to this quaint tradition, which is in a measure corroborated by the old ballad entitled "The Two Children in the Wood; or, The Norfolk Gentleman's Last will and Testament:" it will be found in "Percy's aliques." Joseph Trueman Mills esq. J.P. is lord of the manor of Watton Hall, and the manor of Rockolls belongs to J. E. Alexander esq. The principal landowners are Lord Walsingham J.P. Sir Charles Harvey Harvey bart. Joseph Trueman Mills esq. J.P. Frederick Lake esq. and others The area is 1,897 acres; rateable value, £7,533; the population in 1881 was 1,407.

PETER (or LOWER WEASENHAM) is a parish 9 miles north from Swaffham and 7 south-west-by-south from Fakenham, in the Western division of the county, Launditch hundred, Mitford union, East Dereham county court district, rural deanery of Toftrees, and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Peter is in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave and south aisle, with a low square tower. The church was restored in 1870 at a cost of about £2,000, which was borne by the family of the vicar. The register dates from the year 1581. The living is a vicarage, annexed to that of Weasenhams All Saints, tithes commuted at £378, with 35 acres of glebe and residence, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Stratton Charles Campbell M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. Wilson's charity is £2 13s.; the Town

WEETING-with-BROMEHILL form one parish, on the navigable river Little Ouse and the borders of Suffolk, in the Western division of the county, union and county court district of Thetford, hundred of Grimshoe, rural deanery of Cranwich, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The Brandon station and about 5 miles of the Great Eastern railway are within the parish of Weeting. There were two churches here at a former period, but one (All Saints) was demolished a century ago by the falling in of the tower, and some of the ruins are still to be seen in the park; also the ruins of a castle, built by "the Earl de Warenne," son-in-law of William the Norman; the De la Plaix family succeeded to the De Warennes. The remaining church of St. Mary is a small building in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle and round embattled tower containing 2 bells. The register dates from the year 1558. The livings form a consolidated rectory, joint tithe rent charge £517, with 150 acres of glebe and house, in the gift of Caius College, Cambridge, and held since 1857 by the Rev. Stephen Hanson M.A. late fellow of that college, who resides at 61 Warwick-gardens, Kensington: the Rev. Charles Thomas Ward B.A. of Wadham College, Oxford, is curate in charge. The Devil's Dyke borders the parish for about 3 miles on the north-west, an ancient mound or parapet of earth extending from the Ouse to Didlington, supposed to have been cast up by some tribe of the ancient Britons to prevent the predatory incursions of their neighbours. In the parish are Grimes graves, of which a scientific examination was made in 1870 by the Rev. Canon Greenwell, of Durham, the well known opener of the Yorkshire Wold tumuli: the main object of the examination is to test the soundness of the foregoing conclusion of archaeologists, that these works are the remains of an ancient British village, when the primitive people of the period lived in dwellings partly sunk into the ground: the "graves," of which there are more than a hundred, are circular in form, situated in a wild and desolate locality: large numbers of animal bones have been turned up, amongst them the horns of the red and the roe deer, the teeth of a small ox, goats, swine and dog, and other objects of interest, chief amongst which were several rolled pebbles, worn at the ends by use as flint flaking tools, clublike instruments, made from the antler of the red

WELBORNE is a village and parish  $3\frac{1}{2}$  miles north-north-east from Hardingham station and  $6\frac{1}{2}$  south-east from East Dereham, in the Southern division of the county, Forehoe hundred and union, Wymondham county court district, rural deanery of Hingham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of All Saints is a structure of flint, dating from about A.D. 1280, in the Early English style, with windows of Decorated, and south porch of Perpendicular style; it consists of chancel and nave and a comparatively modern round tower containing 1 bell, built against a western lancet window: the chancel, with vestry and organ chamber, was erected in 1874-6, in place of the previous one of 1671, in the style of the original one, but somewhat less in length and breadth. The register dates from the year 1695. The living is a rectory, with rent charge of £240 and 42 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Rev. John Barham Johnson M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Henry Barham Johnson M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge: the parsonage was erected in 1846. WELLS-NEXT-THE-SEA is a coast town, parish and station on the Great Eastern railway, and polling-place for the North division of the county, 10 miles north from Fakenham, 32 north-west from Norwich and 118 miles from London, in North Greenhoe hundred, Walsingham union and county court district, rural deanery of Walsingham and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The town is not incorporated, but is governed by the commissioners appointed in 1844 by an Act of the 7th and 8th of Victoria. Gas works were erected in pursuance of the above Act, the old streets and roads improved, and a stone quay erected 250 yards in length; the improvements have cost £23,000. The tide rises on the bar 20 feet, in the harbour about 12 feet, and vessels of 150 tons can enter. The trade is chiefly in malt, barley, linseed cake, corn, coals, timber, salt and manure. There are fisheries for oysters and mussels. This was formerly a port, but since January 1881 it has ceased to be so, and now forms part of the port of Lynn. The harbour commissioners are making survey for the purpose of improving the harbour, having capital to the amount of £1,000 at their disposal. The church of St. Nicholas, which was almost entirely destroyed by fire caused by lightning in a storm on August 3rd and 4th, 1879, was a noble building, consisting of deep chancel, nave and aisles, with north, south and west galleries, and a square embattled tower: the style was fifteenth century Perpendicular: there is a window in the chancel, of the date 1810, to the memory of the late rector's father, which was very slightly damaged by the fire: a decorated screen of carved oak divided the nave from the chancel: in the latter was an organ, several ancient tablets, and one brass, date 1588: in the vestry was an old oak chest, bearing date 1635, which was preserved: the tracery and open frame roofs over the nave and chancel were very elaborately worked, and surmounted by figures of angels richly carved. In 1875 a new churchyard near the parish church was laid out, and entrance gates at the west side erected: the ground occupies a space of about an acre and a half. The church has been restored and was re-opened for service in April, 1883: the original style of the building was followed exactly, and where possible the exact stones were replaced: the tower remained, but had been gutted by the fire and the clock and bells destroyed: the cost of the restoration up to this time has been £6,000, but about £4,000 are required to complete the restoration. Mr. Herbert Green, architect, of Norwich, placed his services gratuitously at the disposition of the committee, and has so far completed the restoration in the true spirit of the original building. The register dates from the year 1548. The living is a rectory, yearly value £550, with residence and 176 acres of glebe land, in the gift of and held since 1880 by the Rev. John Rushworth Pilling M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a meeting house for the Society of Friends. The Custom House is on the Quay. Large rooms have been erected on the Crown bowling green and in the Globe Hotel yard, for concerts, public meetings and amusements. Here are malt houses, rope walks, machine works and corn mills. The London and Provincial Bank Limited, and Gurneys, Birkbeck and Co.'s banks have branches here. A fair is held every Shrove Tuesday, on the Butt lands. A life boat (supported by voluntary contributions) was presented to the town of Wells by the Royal National Life Boat Institution, called the "Eliza Adams," after the donor's wife: this boat, during the gale of October 29th, 1880, was capsized after the crew had rescued one ship's crew and were returning to save a second, when ten of the men were drowned: the crew refusing to man this boat after this casualty, it was transferred to the National Life Boat Institution, who presented them with a new one, which was launched July 10, 1882, by Miss Charlotte Nichols, after whom it is named: after the calamity funds were raised to the amount of £3,000, which were invested in purchasing annuities for the lives of the widows. The charities, amounting to about £300 yearly, are now distributed in accordance with a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, dated July, 1876, and are as follows:—Rev. Mungo Moray's charity, producing £18 yearly from an estate at Bale; Christopher Ringer's charity, a farm house, with buildings and three cottages and 88 acres of land in Bassingham and Barningham, sold to J. T. Mott esq. of the latter place, for £6,000, which was invested in Consols, and the income thereby considerably increased; Ann Tidd's charity of £5 annually, arising out of land in Wells, now in the possession of the Earl of Leicester K.G.; William Branch Elliott's charity, £338 New 3 per Cent. Annuities, and the fuel allotment, a piece of land in Wells, allotted under the "Enclosure Act" in 1813, and now let to the Earl of Leicester for £30 a year. One third of the nett yearly income of these charities is applied to educational purposes, and the remainder distributed in gifts of clothes, food, fuel and medicines to poor persons not in receipt of regular parochial relief. The permanent body of charity trustees under the Act consists of the Rector and Churchwardens, and the Chairman of the School Board for the time being, ex officio, and eight others: George S. Andrews is clerk to the trustees. The Earl of Leicester is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is very light; subsoil, chalky. The chief crops are barley, wheat and turnips. The area of the parish is 2,704 acres of land and 1,820 of water; rateable value, £8,817 12s. 6d.; the population in 1881 was 2,647.

WENDLING is a village and parish and station on the Lynn branch of the Great Eastern railway, 12½ miles from London and 4 west from East Dereham, in the Western division of the county, Launditch hundred, Mitford and Launditch union, East Dereham county court district, rural deanery of Brisley and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a small building of flint with stone dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, vestry, a square tower containing 3 bells and porch. The register dates from the year 1553. The living is a rectory, annexed to that of Longham, joint yearly value £150, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor and held since 1869 by the Rev. William Ray Eaton B.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel, built in 1877. The charities are £24 yearly for distribution, and the fuel allotment of 9 acres produces £11 for coals. Here was an abbey founded in the time of Henry III. for Premonstratensian canons; there are no remains of the building left, the ruins and foundations having been used some years since for the repair of roads. John Margaron esq. who is lord of the manor, Colonel Fyson and Mr. William Hubbard are principal landowners. The soil is mixed; sub soil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 1,436 acres; rateable value, £2,498; the population in 1881 was 361.

part of the Islington Lodge Estate is in this parish: it was reclaimed from the river Ouse in 1821, and purchased by the present owner from the Eau Brink Commissioners in 1850: it extends for nearly 2 miles and affords excellent pasture. The name of the parish is said to date from the thirteenth century, when one John de Wiggenhale, a descendant of a follower of the Conqueror, became owner of the manor, of which the parish formed a part. St. Mary's Hall, the seat of Gustavus Helsham esq. J.P. is situated in this parish, about 4 miles from King's Lynn: the residence has been erected at different periods, the centre having been originally the embattled gatehouse of a more ancient hall or manor-house, which was a very extensive brick building, erected, no doubt, by the family of Kerville, or Caprville. The Kervilles were lords of the manor from the time of Richard I. till the year 1624, when the family became extinct: it then passed to the Berners, and in 1727 was sold to Sir Robert Brown, who was created a baronet in the fifth year of the reign of George II. and who was successively the King's resident at Venice and paymaster of his Majesty's works, and also member of parliament for the borough of Ilchester. Sir Robert died without issue, and devised the estate to his wife, Lady Brown, who was a mem-of the old Anglo-Irish family of Helsham, of the county of Kerry: from her the estate passed through several members of this family to its present owner, who has made extensive improvements in the hall, and on the demesne generally. Gustavus Helsham esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor, Horace Spelman Marriott, John Gedney, William Harding (owner of Islington Lodge Estate) and Charles Bowers esqrs. are the chief landowners. The soil is rich; subsoil, clay and turf. The chief crops are wheat, beans, oats and peas. The parish contains 2,807 acres of land; rateable value, £4,845; and had in 1881 a population of 320.

or threats from him who usurped ye highest power could seduce him from his constant adherence to his abandoned Prince and the persecuted Church of England. He retired to a private life, devoting himself wholly to the service of God and religion, and peaceably departed hence in 1657, in the 77th year of his age, expecting a joyful resurrection." In October, 1882, a stained window was placed in the north aisle by Mr. John Smallbone, in memory of his wife. The register dates from the year 1678. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £183, with residence and 24 acres of glebe, in the gift of E. Kent esq. and held since 1872 by the Rev. Edward John Alvis M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge. The charities derived from the church and town lands amount to £55 yearly, which sum is divided equally, part being taken to pay off the interest and principal of a loan for the restoration of the church, and the other expended in gifts of coal amongst the poor. Edmund Kent esq. lord of the manor, is one of the principal landowners, the others being Morse's trustees, Mrs. Barnard, Misses Beckington and the trustees of the late R. Curl. The soil is varied; subsoil carr stone and clay. The principal crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 2,530 acres; rateable value, £3,339; and the population in 1881 was 404. The common contains 80 acres.

with residence and 29 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1846 by the Rev. George Eller M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each a place of worship here. The lands belonging to the poor of West Winch yield a rental of about £35, which is chiefly expended in coals. The Marquis of Cholmondeley, who is lord of the manor, and Thomas R. Whitaker esq. are chief landowners. The soil is mostly gravel and sand. The crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 970 acres; rateable value, £2,818; the population in 1881 was 408.

INFARTHING is a pleasant village and parish 3½ miles north-west from Burston station and 4 north from Diss, in the Southern division of the county, Diss hundred and county court district, Guiltcross union, rural deanery of Denhall, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is an old building in the perpendicular style, having chancel, nave, south aisle, and tower: the interior is plain, with an oak roof. The register dates from the year 1614. The living is a rectory, yearly value £570, with 33 acres of glebe and house, in the gift of the Earl of Albemarle, and held since 1883 by the Rev. George Keppel B.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The fuel allotment of 39 acres produces £52 yearly, and the town's land of 45 acres, producing about £100 yearly, goes to support the school; the remainder is expended at the discretion of the trustees. There is an old tradition respecting a sword, called the Good Sword of Winfarthing, kept by the monks in former times, and which had belonged to a thief who had taken sanctuary: it is said to have possessed such virtues that people came far and near to offer gifts at its shrine. Here was formerly a deer park, containing 1,000 acres, enclosed by the Earl of Arundel in 1604: the Lodge Farm, in the occupation of Mr. Henry Palmer, and on which are two oak trees of extraordinary dimensions, is a portion of the land. The Crown formerly held this manor, but it was given to Sir William Montchesny by Henry VIII.; it is now the property of the trustees of the late James Mann esq. The Earl of Albemarle, Richard M. Phipson esq. of Norwich, and Thomas Betts esq. are chief landowners; there are several smaller freeholders. The soil is heavy; subsoil, mostly clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, clover, beans and peas. The area is 2,690 acres; rateable value, £4,328; the population in 1881 was 604.

Parish Clerk, James Morley.

CENTRAL WINGLAND is a parish, partly in Norfolk, but mostly in Lincolnshire: particulars are given in Kelly's Directory of Lincolnshire.

WINTERTON is a parish and fishing village 1 mile north from Hemsby station on the Eastern and Midlands railway, and about 8 miles north-by-west from Yarmouth and 21 from Norwich, in the Northern division of the county, incorporated hundreds of East and West Flegg, county court district of Great Yarmouth, rural deanery of Flegg and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of the Holy Trinity and All Saints was built in the early part of the fifteenth century and was in 1878 thoroughly restored and re-seated, to hold 230 persons; the greater part of the expense was borne by Mrs. Burnley Hume, in memory of Joseph Hume who resided at Burnley Hall, to whom there is a tablet: the work was carried out from designs drawn by Mr. Herbert Green, the architect, of Norwich and London: it is a structure of stone, and has chancel, nave, aisles, porch and parvise, with a fine embattled square tower, 127 feet high, commanding a fine view of the ocean: the church and tower were again restored in 1883. The register dates from about the year 1717. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of East Somerton annexed; the tithes are commuted at £544 11s. 8d. with 30 acres of glebe and house, in the gift of and held since 1867 by the Rev. William Green M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The Hundred river has reversed its course, and now flows from the sea instead of into it at this place. There is a coast-guard station. In 1859 a surf boat was placed here by the National Life Boat Institution. Here is a lighthouse, situated on elevated ground, the tower nearly 70 feet high and illuminated by a prismatic reflector. About 150 fishermen are employed in the herring and mackerel fisheries. Winterton had a market and fair, which have long been obsolete. Hill House is the seat of Mrs. Hume, and has very fine ranges of hot-houses and conservatories. The chief landowners are the Earl of Winterton, who is lord of the manor, F. Charsley esq. and Mrs. Hume. The soil is light; subsoil, gravel and sand. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The parish comprises 1,273 acres of land, exclusive of a large extent of sea-beach and warren; rateable value, £1,649; the population in 1881 was 749.

WINTERTON NESS, now locally known as HUMES-HEAD, and one of the chief promontories on the east coast, is within this parish, and a most dangerous part of the coast. The Trinity Board, in 1850, at the request of the late Joseph Hume esq. M.P. the financial reformer, placed a buoy on it. The coast is very dangerous to shipping, and in ancient times the right to wreckage was appurtenant to the manor, and was a subject of dispute between the Abbot of St. Benet's-at-Holme and the Prior of Norwich. The right to wreckage is the subject of a letter from William Peacock steward to Sir John Paxton, the lord of the manor (19th Nov. 1477), published in the Paston letters.

The church of St. Margaret is of flint, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, south aisle, round tower, and porch: the chancel was restored in 1875 by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The register dates from the year 1558, and is in perfect preservation. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £228, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich and held since 1846 by the Rev.

Francis Proctor M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. The tithe commutation is as follows:—To vicar, £120 13s. 4d.; to rector £264; in September, 1872, the rectorial tithe came into the hands of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who added £90 19s. 8d. to the vicarage. There is a substantial house of residence for the vicar, with a glebe of 5 acres, John Norris left £10 10s. a year to the vicar and £3 3s. for keeping his monument in repair, to be given to a poor family when not required for the monument. Witton Park, a noble mansion of white brick—commenced by the late John Norris esq. who did not, however, live to complete the erection—is the property of the Earl of Kimberley: it is now occupied by his eldest son, Lord Wodehouse: its situation is very delightful, being in the centre of a beautiful park and large plantations and on an eminence commanding a view of the sea. The Earl of Kimberley is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is light mixed; subsoil, sand, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,704 acres; rateable value £2,371; and the population in 1881 was 253.

WIVETON (or WIVERTON) is a parish near the sea-coast, on the river Glaven, about half a mile west-by-south from Cley and  $4\frac{1}{2}$  miles north-west-by-north from Holt station, in the Northern division of the county, Holt hundred and county court district, Walsingham union, rural deanery of Holt and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Mary is a handsome building, chiefly in the Later English style: it has chancel, nave with clerestory and aisles, a square embattled tower containing 6 bells and a few ancient brasses. The register dates from the year 1717. The living is a discharged rectory, yearly value £207, in the gift of Benjamin Bond-Cabbell esq. and held since 1846 by the Rev. Anthony Thomas Hudson B.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, who is non-resident; the Rev. Everett Bishop B.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, is the curate-in-charge. Ralph Greenaway, in 1529, devised property, now consisting of the rectorial tithes of Briston, with a barn and a rood of land, and £1,141 11s. £3 per Cent. Consols, now producing an income of about £500 yearly, one-sixth for the repairs of the church, the remainder in weekly distribution of bread and money among the poor, and for educational purposes. Wiveton Hall is the seat of William Henry Gifford Buck esq. and contains some fine carved oak panelling. Lord Calthorpe and Sir Alfred Jodrell bart. who are lords of the manor, and William H. G. Buck esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are on the four-course system. The area is 1,504 acres; rateable value, £1,610; the population in 1881 was 184.

WOLFERTON is a parish and small village and station on the Lynn and Hunstanton railway, being the nearest station to Sandringham, situated on the sea coast, 105 miles from London, and 7 north-by-east from Lynn, in the Western division of the county, Freebridge Lynn hundred and union, Lynn county court district, rural deanery of Lynn and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. A building of carr stone and brick, with covered platform, has been erected, as waiting rooms for H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and family. The church of St. Peter is a large structure of carr stone, rebuilt after a fire which appears to have occurred before 1486: it is in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel, nave with clerestory, aisles, each of which contains chapels at east end, enclosed by fine Early English screen-work, large southern porch, restored in 1868, and square embattled tower at west end containing 1 large and a small sanctus bell, and east window: the east screen, piscina, and sedilia for three priests, and a portion of the rich woodwork in the roof of the nave still remain: the building was re-seated and partially restored some years since by the Hon. Spencer Cowper: in 1877 the chancel and sacristy were restored at a cost of between £200 and £300, defrayed by the late rector: there are the ruins of a sacristy at the north-east angle of the chancel. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £263, with 22 acres of glebe and modern residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich and held since 1883 by the Rev. John Francis Mitchell B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is light, except the marsh land, which is stiff; subsoil, sand and carr stone on the higher land, with clay in the marsh, generally farmed on the four-course shift. The area is 2,714 acres; rateable value, £3,583; the population in 1881 was 185.

WOLTERTON is a parish 5 miles north-west from Aylsham station and 9 south-west from Cromer, in the Northern division of the county, South Erpingham hundred, Aylsham union and county court district, rural deanery of Ingworth and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. A short distance north-east from the Hall are the ruins of the ancient church; little besides the tower now remains. The inhabitants attend the church at Wickmere, with which parish the living is consolidated. The poor have 30s. yearly from Scamler's Charity. The Earl of Orford is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The greater part of the parish is comprised in the extensive park of Wolterton Hall, the property of the Earl of Orford: the old Hall having been destroyed by fire, the present mansion was begun in 1727 and completed in 1741, under the superintendence of Ripley, the architect: it is at present unoccupied. The soil is a good loam; subsoil, brick earth. The chief crops are wheat, turnips, barley and grass. The area is 722 acres; rateable value, £1,131; the population in 1881 was 47. WOODBASTWICK is a village pleasantly situated near the river Bure,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  miles east from Salhouse station and 8 north-east from Norwich, in the Southern division of the county, Walsham hundred, Blofield union, Norwich county court district, rural deanery of Blofield and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich. The church of SS. Fabian and Sebastian, in the centre of the village, is in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel, nave, and handsome square tower of flint with 2 bells: it was reopened in July 1880, after having been closed for nearly 2 years for repairs, from the plans of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. at a cost of

£5,000 to the patron: the windows in the nave are stained; those in the chancel are memorial windows to the patron's family. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, with the rectory of Pauxworth annexed, joint yearly value £350, with 31 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Albemarle Cator esq. of Woodbastwick Hall and held since 1848 by the Rev. Henry Peter Dunster M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. There is an ancient endowment of about 7 acres of land for the poor of the parish. Woodbastwick Hall, the seat of Albemarle Cator esq. was burnt down December, 1882: a new Hall is to be built, but not upon the same site. Albeuarle Cator esq. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is mixed; subsoil, brick earth. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,163 acres; rateable value, £2,345; the population in 1881 was 210.

WORSTEAD (anciently called WORSTEDE) is a parish and town, pleasantly situated on gradually rising ground near a stream, having a station on the North Walsham branch of the Great Eastern railway, 8 miles north-east from Aylsham and 3 south-by-east from North Walsham, in the Northern division of the county, Tunstead hundred, Smallburgh union, North Walsham county court district, rural deanery of Waxham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Mary is Gothic, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and porch and an embattled tower of four storeys, to which four pinnacles have been added: it has also a clock and 6 bells: it is constantly being repaired and beautified, towards which a small sum was left by the late Rev. Henry Wharton: the font is hexagonal, each face being finely sculptured: there is a good organ, which was erected by subscription: there were originally nine chapels, two of which were dedicated respectively to the Virgin and St. John the Baptist; the former was restored by the present vicar, in memory of his father; there are also two remarkable double screens, dividing the chapels from the aisles. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £331, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Norwich and held since 1869 by the Rev. George Harris Cooke M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford. In the reign of Edward the Confessor the lordship belonged to the Abbot of St. Bene't-of-Holme, being the gift of King Canute. The manor was then held of the abbot by Robert, an officer, whose son, Odo, assumed the name of De Worstede or Worsted. The period of the foundation of the church is uncertain, but it is of very early date. Sir Robert De Worstead, in the reign of Edward III. granted the appropriation of the church to the priory of Norwich, by deed without date. On the dissolution of the priory, the manor belonging to it, with the rectory and the patronage of the vicarage, were granted to the Dean and Chapter of Norwich, by whom it is at present held. On Meeting House hill there is a chapel belonging to the Baptists, with burial-ground and parsonage: a British school, school house and almshouses for twelve poor members of the congregation, were built and

WROXHAM is a village and parish and station on the East Norfolk railway, and the junction station of the branch line to Aylsham and Cromer, 7 miles north-east from Norwich, in the Southern division of the county, Taverham hundred, St. Faith's union, Norwich county court district, rural deanery of Taverham and archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich, on the Stalham road, occupying elevated ground on the south bank of the Bure, which here forms one of the most considerable broads in the county, covering upwards of 100 acres, well stocked with various kinds of fish: the river is here crossed by a stone bridge of one arch, leading to Hoveton St. John and railway station. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is built of flint, with stone dressings, probably of the fourteenth century, with clerestory added in the sixteenth century, but it replaced a much earlier church, of which a very handsome south doorway is left: it consists of chancel, nave, aisles, with lofty tower and belfry, standing on a knoll: in the churchyard is a large mausoleum, erected by the late Mrs. Southwell to the memory of her husband, Sigismund Trafford Southwell esq. (Sheriff of Norfolk in 1816), who died in 1827. The register dates from the year 1558, but about a hundred years ago the church was broken open, and the registers for some forty years abstracted. The living is a vicarage, with that of Salhouse annexed, joint yearly value £935 with residence, in the gift of W. H. Trafford esq. and held by the Rev. Thomas Francis Boddington M.A. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, who resides at Salhouse. Here are large maling establishments belonging to Mr. W. F. Green, of this parish. WYMONDHAM is a small market town, large parish and junction railway station on the line from London to Norwich: the lines branching from here are those on the west to Dereham and on the east to Fornett, joining the Ipswich and Norwich line. The town is head of a county court district, and polling-place for the Southern division of the county: the parish is divided, for parochial purposes into six divisions, viz., Wattlefield, Sutton, Silfield, Downham, Market Street and Town Green: it is 99 miles by road and 11½ by rail from London, 9½ south-west-by-west from Norwich, 20 north from Thetford and 11 south-east from East Dereham, in the Forehoe hundred and union, rural deanery of Hingham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The town stands in an elevated situation and the houses are irregularly built, showing some antiquity, and it is lighted with gas from the works near the Fairland. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, a large noble edifice, was formerly part of a monastery, a portion of the ruins of which still remains: the octagon tower, at the east end of the church, is in good preservation: the spacious and lofty square western tower, containing 5 bells, was built by the parishioners in monastic times, on account of disputes between the regular and secular clergy as to their respective rights to ring the bells in the abbey tower: the interior has a lofty carved roof, supported by full-length figures of angels; the north aisle roof was repaired in 1845: there are several monumental tablets to the families of Burroughes and Jermy: the portion used as a chancel was restored about the year 1868, under the direction of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The register dates from the year 1615. The living is a vicarage, the vicarial tithe rent charge being commuted at £799 4s. 8d. with some glebe lands, in the gift of the Bishop of Norwich and held since 1854 by the Rev. Robert Eden M.A. honorary canon of Norwich, late fellow of Corpus Christi college, Oxford. The rectorial tithe rent charge (in the hands of a lay impropriator) was commuted at £2,192 15s. 4d. The Primitive Methodist chapel, Town green, is a building of red and white bricks, the front having stone dressings with some carving, and was erected in 1870-1, at a cost of (including the site) £1,300, since which galleries, class rooms and Sunday school room have been added and there are sittings for 500 persons: in 1877 a minister's house was erected adjoining the chapel: there is a small chapel at Silfield, erected in 1867, in connection with this denomination. The Congregational chapel, Fairland, is a brick building, erected about the year 1710, since which it has been enlarged and the interior was refitted in 1877; it will seat 550 persons. The Wesleyan chapel, Damgate street, is a brick building, erected in 1879. The Baptist chapel, Back lane, was erected about the year 1800, and will seat about 200 persons. Near the Bridewell is a small building in which meetings are held by a few friends professing simple Christian faith. The Society of Friends have a meeting house situated about one mile from the town, on the Crownthorpe road, to which a burial ground is attached. A cemetery of 9 acres was opened on May 1st, 1882; the cost of ground was £650 and of 2 mortuary chapels £1,765: it is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members formed in 1878. There are several charities left for the benefit of the poor, the principal of which is the Town Lands Charity. The charity property is vested in the official Trustee of Charity Lands and now administered by 9 (the original number, being 13) trustees, of whom the Earl of Kimberley is chairman: the income amounts to about £250 yearly, out of which £60 is paid to the master of the Free Grammar school, £15 clerk's salary, £12 for apprenticing one or more boys of the parish, £7 6s. to the poor of the hamlet of Sutton and repairs of Grammar school, master's house and other buildings, the balance being added to the fuel allotment account. A sum of about £104 a year, derived from the fuel allotments which comprise 53 acres of land is expended in the purchase of coals, which are sold to the poor at reduced prices and delivered at their homes. The old County Female Prison, or House of Correction, is situated at the entrance of the town from Norwich, and has been converted into a police station, with superintendent's residence and magisterial court house, the female prisoners are now received at Norwich Castle. A Fire brigade was established in 1882 and engine house erected in the Market place; they have two manual engines and other necessary appliances. The market cross, in the centre of the town, built in 1616, is an octagonal building, supported on wooden pillars at each angle: in 1863 it was repaired and is now appropriated as a news, reading room and library, the latter containing about 500 volumes: it is an object of curiosity, on account of its antique appearance and its carved devices, representing different articles of turnery, which originally formed one of the staple branches of the trade of this place, but has declined for many years: an extensive turnery business is, however, now carried on with improved machinery. The market, on Friday, is unimportant and little business is now transacted. Three fairs are held annually, on the 14th of February, May the 17th for cattle, and on October the 12th for pleasure. Formerly a large trade was carried on by the inhabitants in the manufacture of paramattas, nets, satins and crapes, for Norwich houses, but it is now nearly extinct. St. Thomas à Becket's chapel, an interesting ecclesiastical structure in Town green, was restored by the trustees of the Town Lands Charity and is used for entertainments of a various character, being the only place available in the town for such purposes. Here is an extensive brewery, belonging to Messrs. William Cann & Co. Stanfield Hall is an ancient mansion in the Tudor style, having a large entrance hall, with richly groined roof and is encompassed by a moat: it occupies the site of the original manor house, erected about the twelfth century and stands in a park of about 70 acres: it is now the property of the heirs of Mrs. Gwyn and in the occupation of Colonel George Wilson Boileau F.R.G.S., F.R.Z.S., D.L., J.P. Burfield Hall, the residence of Maj.-General Henry Beville C.B. is about 2 miles south on the London road: it is a Queen Anne building, erected in 1709, and contains a fine entrance hall and old oak staircase, many of the rooms are panelled and some of the walls are of considerable thickness, it was originally surrounded by a moat, traces of which still remain. Gunvil Hall, now a farm house, in the Elizabethan style, formerly surrounded by a moat, is occupied by Mr. George Bowhill. There are several manors in this parish, the principal of which are those of Grisauigh, Cromwells and Rustens, of which Colonel Charles Robert Hobart, of Bath, is lord; Queen's manor, of which Mrs. J. de R. B. Clarke is lady; and Gunvils, of which E. W. R. Clarke esq. is lord: the other manors are Brockdish, Stalworthy's and Burfield Hall, Stanfield Hall and Wymondham Hethersett. The principal land-owners are the Earl of Kimberley, Edward William Routh Clarke esq. Colonel Hobart and the trustees of the late H. N. Burroughes esq. The number of acres is 10,613; rateable value £26,994; the population of the whole parish in 1881 was 4,566.

At WATTLEFIELD, 3 miles south, is a chapel of ease, built by John Mitchell esq. Wattlefield Hall is a building of the present century, in the Elizabethan style, and stands in about 50 acres of pasture and wood and is the seat of Edward William Routh Clarke esq. Spooner Row, formerly inhabited by makers of spoons and other wooden ware, is in this division. There is a small Wesleyan chapel here, built in the early part of the present century. There is likewise a small station on the main line of the Great Eastern railway, but at which few trains stop.

SUTTON adjoins the town on the south-west, SILFIELD on the east and south-east, and DOWNHAM on the north and north-west, each extending about 3 miles from the town. Kimberley Hall, the seat of the Right Hon. the Earl of Kimberley, is in Downham division.

Y A R M O U T H.

YARMOUTH (or GREAT YARMOUTH, Magna Jernemutha) derives its name from its situation at the mouth of the river Yare (the Garienis of the Romans): it is 145 miles from London by rail (via Cambridge), 120 by the East Suffolk railway (via Ipswich), 123 by turnpike road, 20 east-by-south from Norwich by rail and 24 by road, 9 north from Lowestoft, 54 north-east from Ipswich, and 50 north-east from Bury St. Edmunds, in lat. 52° 16' N. and long. 1° 43' 7" E. The town is a municipal borough, polling-town for the Northern division of the county, seaport, and bathing place, and has separate quarter sessions, and is in the hundred of East Flegg, rural deanery of Flegg, arch-deaconry and diocese of Norwich.

The parish of Yarmouth is wholly in Norfolk, but the municipal borough includes the parish of GORLESTON and hamlet of SOUTHTOWN, which are in Suffolk, and over which, for municipal and sanitary purposes, the town council of Yarmouth have jurisdiction. Yarmouth formerly returned two members to Parliament, but it was disfranchised by the "Representation of the People Act, 1867."

The town is under the government of a corporation, consisting of a mayor, twelve aldermen, and thirty-six councillors, with a recorder, high steward, town clerk, coroner, and clerk of the peace. The Corporation Act as the Urban Sanitary Authority. There is a separate commission of the peace, including the mayor and ex-mayor, and under it petty sessions are holden daily, and also quarter sessions. The recorder presides in the borough court.

Next to Norwich, Yarmouth is the chief town of the eastern counties, and the port of East Norfolk and Suffolk, and is a flourishing town, owing to its fisheries, its foreign trade, its advantages as a bathing place, and its manufactures; its situation is as peculiar as its origin, being founded on a sand which formed at the entrance of the estuary which then flowed up to Norwich, and which sand gradually became dry land, added to by the sand drifted from the beach in the prevailing easterly winds in the spring. Here the Bure, the Waveney, and the Yare empty their confluent streams with those of their tributaries the Ant, the Thurne, and the Wensum, after fertilizing very extensive tracts of country, through a long and broad artificial haven, into the German ocean. At a very early period this place was frequented by fishermen from different parts of England, especially the Cinque Ports, who dried their nets on the denes or downs, and eventually erected houses thereon, so that in the time of Edward the Confessor there were 70 burgesses, and it became the great mart for herrings, especially during the annual free fair. The Cinque Ports for a long while exercised the right of sending bailiffs to Yarmouth to govern the place during the herring season, from Michaelmas to Martinmas; they held concurrent jurisdiction with the bailiffs of Yarmouth, being the only instance of the kind on record; it led to many disputes, and in the reign of Charles II. the bailiffs of the Cinque Ports finally ceased to attend.

There was a chapel here as early as the reign of the Confessor; but in 1100 Bishop Herbert de Losinga, the first Bishop of Norwich, built the church of St. Nicolas (since greatly enlarged), with a Benedictine priory adjoining (now a National school), where the priests and monks who served the church resided. King John granted to the burgesses a charter (which is still preserved), making Yarmouth a free borough, and conferring many valuable rights and privileges, in consideration of a fee farm rent of £30, which is still paid to the crown. From this period Yarmouth greatly increased, and became so powerful that it supplied Edward III. with more ships and men for carrying on his wars than any other place in the kingdom. Many subsequent charters (all of which were preserved in the Hutch or Town Chest, and are now in the Muniment Room at the Town Hall), were conferred by successive monarchs; and in the reign of Charles II. Southtown was incorporated with Yarmouth. The town was encompassed by a wall, commenced temp. Henry III. having ten gates and sixteen towers, the remains of which can still be traced. The town is now defended by two batteries.

The "Denes" on which Yarmouth is situated, form a long and narrow tongue of land or peninsula, running from the north towards the south, washed on the east side by the German ocean, and on the west by the river Bure, Breydon Water, which receives the Yare and Waveney, and the main channel, which carries all these rivers to the sea. The old town is built on the river side of the denes, but of late years Yarmouth has extended completely to the sea for a frontage of nearly three-quarters of a mile.

The town is regularly built, and has some fine houses, both in the old and new parts; the Health of Towns Act has been applied to it, and it is well paved, drained, and lighted. The North and South Quays, which are very broad, and extend for nearly a mile and a quarter, are among the peculiar and interesting features of Yarmouth. The principal streets run parallel with the quays, and are crossed by 145 narrow lanes called rows, which are numbered.

The town is lighted with gas, and watched by a borough police, under Government inspection.

The bridge over the Yare, between Yarmouth and Southtown (a connecting link between Norfolk and Suffolk) was completed in 1854 and is built of iron on the tubular principle upon two massive stone piers, each 12 feet across; on either side, between the piers and the abutments the span of the waterway is 65 feet, and in the centre between the piers the span is 50 feet; the centre span opens in two parts, the leaves of which weigh upwards of 90 tons, and the structure, with the approaches, comprise upwards of 2,600 tons weight of granite and stone and about 300 tons of iron; the cost, including the purchase of the site, was about £30,000. An iron tubular bridge, in two compartments, connects the railway with the tranways, which extend the entire length of the quays. A wrought-iron bridge has been erected over the Bure, at the same spot where many persons were plunged into the river by the fall of the previous bridge in May, 1845, and some drowned.

The Britannia Pier at the north end, and the Wellington Pier at the south end of the Parade and the Old Jetty between them, afford agreeable promenades, and the former pier is useful for passengers landing from boats. A promenade and carriage drive extends along the entire sea frontage of the town, from the Cemetery road at the north end to the Haven's mouth at the south end, being three miles in length next the sea, and returns along the east bank of the river back to the town.

The town is supplied with water from one of the lakes (locally called "broads,") having an area of between 700 and 800 acres, at Ormesby, about 8 miles north-west from Yarmouth: the works belong to a company of shareholders, who obtained their Act of Parliament in 1853. There is a large covered reservoir at Gorleston, from which both that place and Yarmouth are supplied, the old open reservoir at Caister being now disused.

There is water communication with North Walsham, Aylsham, Norwich, Beccles, and Bungay.

At an early period there was a channel to the sea on the north side of the town, called Grubb's Haven, but this gradually became choked with sand, and is not now discernible. The south channel was then at Newton, near Corton, in Suffolk, 4 miles south of the present: afterwards the channel was beyond Corton; and in 1337 it became so choked with sandbanks, and was so inconvenient, that the trade of the town was stopped. Subsequently many attempts were made to cut channels in different places, but these failed; and after seven trials, in 1559 the present channel was made: these works were completed in 1567 by Joost Jansen, or Joyce Johnsen, a Netherlands engineer: the shores on each side are now defended by piers and jetties. The rise of spring tides is about 6 feet, and of neap tides 4 feet, the depth of water on the bar being about 12 feet, and at high tides from 18 to 20 feet. The roadstead, except with eastern or north-east winds, affords excellent anchorage, and was much resorted to by the navy in time of war, as it is by merchantmen and colliers passing the east coast at the present time; frequently as many as 1,000 vessels are to be seen at anchor at one time. There are commissioners for the haven and pier, and also for pilotage.

A railway to Norwich forms part of the Great Eastern system, and is the route to the North and the Midland counties; whilst the East Suffolk line, which has a separate station in Southtown, affords communication with all the towns in Suffolk, and is the shortest route to London.

The Eastern and Midlands railway has its terminus at the Beach station, Nelson road north, closely adjoining the aquarium, parade, beach &c. This railway company has been formed by the amalgamation of the Lynn and Fakenham, Yarmouth and North Norfolk, Midland and Eastern, Peterborough, Wisbech and Sutton and Yarmouth Union Companies, and by means of it a new and direct communication is afforded to London and the Midland and Northern counties; viâ, Fakenham, Lynn, Sutton Bridge and Peterborough. The company also brings the towns and districts of North Walsham, Aylsham, Melton Constable, Fakenham &c. in direct communication with Yarmouth, and provides an alternative route to Norwich and Lynn. The celebrated Norfolk Broads are easily accessible by this railway.

The parish church of St. Nicolas, which is cruciform, was founded early in the 12th century by Herbert de Losinga, the first Bishop of Norwich, and received various additions during the 13th, 14th and 15th centuries, till it became a large and splendid edifice, with numerous chapels rich in plate, jewels and other ornaments: in 1551 the monumental brasses were cast into weights and measures, and during the time of the Commonwealth the church suffered great mutilation and damage; various repairs were carried out in a very unsatisfactory manner during the first decade of the present century, but it was not until 1847 that the restoration of the church was properly commenced when a partial restoration was effected, at a cost of about £6,000; the unsightly pews were replaced by good open benches and various other works carried out, under the direction of the architect, Mr. J. H. Hakewell: in 1862 the work of restoration was recommenced, under the direction of Mr. J. P. Seddon; the old tower was thoroughly repaired and the parapet and the pinnacles at the angles replaced; the chancel proper was also restored and the partition walls dividing the chancel and its aisles from the remainder of the church were taken down, and, for the first time during the last 300 years, the whole of this noble edifice was thrown open: the south aisle, which was in a ruinous state, has been thoroughly restored; a stained east window was inserted in 1878 to the memory of Mr. and Mrs. Palgrave, by their children; the artist is Mr. Dickson, of London, and the window is, in most particulars, a very successful one of the ancient glass character; very handsome oak stalls are being erected in the choir from time to time, the product of a ladies' working party held at the Vicarage weekly: a magnificent pulpit, erected at great cost, may be pronounced as unique in its character, it is extremely handsome but not less useful because by moving about it the preacher can see and be seen by the congregation in every part of the church, a circumstance which helps much to secure the attention of all present: a splendid piece of decoration has been added at the west end of the south aisle, which is known as the "Mills Memorial" and consists of a beautiful stained window and mural decorations: the area of the building is larger than that of any other parish church in the kingdom, and it will seat a congregation of about 5,000 persons: the organ, first built by Jordan in 1733, is a magnificent instrument and has been divided and thoroughly repaired and enlarged by Bishop and Son, the two parts facing westward in two enormous chancel aisles: they were opened 6th July, 1875: there are monuments to the Englands, Fullers, Turners, and some few other families of distinction, while plain marble slabs mark the resting-places of John Carter, the friend of Cromwell and of Mrs. Bridget Bendish, daughter of General Ireton and granddaughter of the Lord Protector: the font, which is of Parbeck marble, is octagonal and very ancient: the vestry contains a small collection of old books and a curious revolving reading-desk: the vicar is very desirous to erect a magnificent and lofty spire about 60 feet from the west end of the church, the gilt cross of which would be the first thing in England on which the rising sun would shine. The parish register dates from 1558. The living is a vicarage, yearly value about £360, but precarious and uncertain, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Norwich and held since 1874 by the Rev. George Venables S.C.L., F.R.A.S. of St. Edmund Hall, Oxford, rural dean of Fleg, honorary canon of Norwich and late one of the Royal Commissioners on Patronage.

St. George's chapel of ease was built in 1714 and is a fair specimen of the architecture of the time: it consists of apsidal chancel, nave and aisles and has a gallery and sittings for about 800: it has recently (1883) been thoroughly repaired and reseatd at a cost of about £1,200.

St. Peter's church was built in 1833, at a cost of £12,000: it is of white brick, consisting of nave, aisles and gallery, with a tower 118 feet high, in which is a clock having four dials: there is in it a copy of Rubens' Descent from the Cross: it has sittings for about 1,500. The living is a perpetual curacy in the gift of the vicar of Yarmouth; the Rev. William Thorpe Goodrich has been incumbent since 1881.

St. John's church near the beach, erected in 1857, and since then enlarged five times, is built of cut flint with stone dressings, in the Early English style. The chancel is terminated by a round apse, many of the windows are filled with painted glass in memory of various persons who were members of the congregation: designs have been prepared by Messrs. Bottle and Olley, architects of the town, for further alterations; when these are completed the church will consist of chancel, with apsidal end and south chancel aisle, nave, aisles and transepts, organ chamber, north and south porches and bell turret over the south porch, clergy vestry and large octagonal vestry connected with the church by a corridor: it will seat about 700 persons. This is a curacy in the gift of the vicar, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Arthur John Spencer M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge and Wells Theological College.

St. Andrew's church and schools, near the North quay, were erected in 1860, principally for the river population. The style is Early English: the church is built externally of cut flints, with stone dressings, and is internally faced with red bricks with white brick bands, and consists of apsidal chancel, nave, south aisle and north and south transepts, a north aisle is (now 1883), about to be added. The Rev. George Girling has been curate since 1879.

St. James' church Queen's road, the erection of which commenced some years back, is still incomplete and consists at present of chancel and nave only, the Rev. George Angustus Frederick Quentin M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, has been minister of this district since 1882.

The Catholic church, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, was erected in the year 1874, at an expense considerably exceeding £10,000: it stands at the junction of the Regent road with Nelson road south: the sacred edifice is Gothic and consists of chancel, nave which is lighted by quatrefoil windows in the clerestory, aisles, sacristy and lofty tower at the north-west angle: the interior is partially decorated: the high altar, reredos and pulpit are of stone, elaborately carved: the fourteen stations of the Cross are represented in bas-relief on the walls. The Rev. Thomas Williams S.J. and James Foley S.J. are the priests. The new elementary schools belonging to this church are spacious and ornate: they were erected in the year 1881, and opened in January, 1882, and will hold nearly 600 children. The cost of the ground, which is freehold, and the buildings was £3,000 and upwards, and the money was furnished by the priests of the mission, and the schools are the private property of the clergy attached to the church: the number of scholars is about 300. The Catholic Cemetery is in the Caister road, in which stands a mortuary chapel.

The Society of Friends have a Meeting House, in Row 60, Howard street.

The Baptist chapel, Wellesley road, was erected in 1870, for the congregation formerly worshipping in the Old Meeting, built in 1756, Row 15. The Baptist chapel, York road, was built in 1841.

The Baptist chapel, St. George's park, was built in 1861, at a cost, including schools, of £3,500: there are sittings for 550 persons.

The Brethren have a small chapel in Albion road.

The Congregational chapel, Middlegate street, built in 1870, at a cost of £3,500, has sittings for about 800. A large lecture hall with class rooms was added in 1879, at a further cost of £3,500. The Congregational chapel, King street, was built in 1855.

The Countess of Huntingdon's Connexion church, Fish street, contains 450 sittings.

The Methodist New Connexion chapel, King street, contains about 400 sittings.

The Primitive Methodist chapel (Yarmouth Temple), Priory plain, was built in 1875, at a cost of £4,891. The Primitive Methodist chapel, Queen's road, was built in 1867, at a cost of £1,680, and has sittings for about 600.

The Old Meeting House, Unitarian chapel, Middlegate street, has sittings for about 500.

The United Methodist Free church, Regent road, was built in 1856, sittings for about 600.

The Wesleyan chapel, Dene side, was built in 1837, and has sittings for about 1,200.

The parish churchyard, which is extensive, was enlarged about the year 1833. A cemetery of 12 acres, north-east of the church and adjoining the churchyard, was enclosed in 1855 and a further enclosure of 15 acres of ground adjoining the latter was made in 1875: the total extent of burial-ground contiguous to the church is about 40 acres.

The Blue Coat Charity School, in Market place, was erected in 1713 by the corporation: it has an income of about £200 yearly from invested funds, which is augmented by subscriptions: there are 100 boys and 50 girls educated and occasionally provided with clothing: the master's residence adjoins the school-house.

The Old Priory, near the parish church, has been purchased and converted into a National school for boys, girls and infants, together with an upper school for boys, in which various extra subjects are taught: these schools were opened in 1852 and will hold about 80 children. In 1853 buildings were erected in a style corresponding with that of the schools, to form a reading-room, library and museum.

The charities of the town are administered by trustees under the control of the Charity Commissioners and others: the revenue is about £1,000 a year.

The Hospital of the Blessed Virgin Mary was founded in the reign of Edward I. by Thomas Fastolfe, for eight poor men and eight poor women: it passed into the possession of the corporation and was dissolved at the Reformation. In 1551 a Grammar school "for all the inhabitants" was established, to which was appropriated the great Hall of the Hospital and other parts of the old building, including a house for the master, and a part of the revenue of the Hospital was applied to the support of the master and of the Grammar school. This school continued until 1757, when having fallen into decay it was closed and so remained until 1860, when it was re-established by the Charity Trustees (with the concurrence of the Commissioners) under a scheme which provides that the son of any inhabitant can obtain a good commercial or classical education for £6 a year. The new buildings are in Trafalgar road: the school-room was opened on the 6th June, 1872, by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales: about 130 boys are annually educated.

In 1650 Mr. Owner, a wealthy inhabitant of Yarmouth, proposed a scheme "for maintaining and setting the poor to work" and settled a sum of money for that purpose, which was supplemented by the corporation out of the Hospital and other charity funds in their hands: ultimately, instead of applying the money to a workhouse, schools for the poor were established, called the Hospital schools, where a number of boys and girls were lodged, clothed, fed and educated: in 1842 the old buildings were pulled down and the present buildings erected on the former site on the east side of the Market place, when the number of boarders was reduced and in 1850 the lodging, clothing and diet of the children (under the advice of the Charity Commissioners) ceased and the peculiar dress was abolished, but the gratuitous education of a larger number of poor children has continued to the present time: both the boys' and girls' schools have an average attendance of 200: the boys' school is under Government inspection.

The Fishermen's Hospital was founded in 1702, for decayed and disabled fishermen and is endowed with property amounting to £63 yearly: there are free houses for twenty decayed fishermen who have attained the age of sixty, and the yearly income of the charity is divided among them.

Warne's Charity amounts on an average to about £500 a year, derived from an estate at Thrigby, in Norfolk, and a small sum in Consols, and is applied in gifts of money in sums not exceeding £1 each, to the poor widows of Great Yarmouth.

Paston's, Packer's, Hall's and Colby's charities for distributing money and coals, for the poor of the parish, amount in the aggregate to about £30 yearly.

The new Town Hall has been erected on the Quay, from plans by Mr. John B. Pearce, architect, of Surrey street, Norwich: it is built of red brick, with dressings of red sandstone from St. Bees, Cumberland: the site is a square of about 115 feet; the principal entrance is on the north, opening into a vestibule and thence to the central hall, which is 80 feet by 24 feet, and from the ground to the pinnacle of the clock tower, 125 feet; from the vestibule access is gained to the various offices for the town clerk, the muniment room, committee room, accountants' room, chief constable's and police room, with convenient access to the cells; also the surveyors' offices and rooms for barristers, and waiting rooms for witnesses &c.: the grand staircase ascends from the central hall, and is of white Portland stone, with balusters of teak, beautifully carved: the staircase gives access to the first floor, on which are the quarter sessions court, 32 feet by 49, with gallery for the public, with judges retiring room: the Assembly room, which is the principal apartment, as it extends the full length of the building on the west side, and is 100 feet long by 45 feet wide: there are chairs for 900 persons: the northern end is shut off by a teak screen for a refreshment room: here are also the council room and rooms for the use of the grand and petty juries, connected with the court by a small corridor, through which the jury pass to present their bills, and on this floor, at the south-east corner, is the police court, which is well arranged and ventilated, and specially adapted to its use; there is a separate room for witnesses and a stone staircase leads from the cells to the court by which prisoners are placed in the dock: Messrs. J. W. Lacy and Son, of Norwich, were the contractors for the entire building: all the furniture and fittings have been designed by Mr. Pearce so as to be in character with the building: the stoves have been specially made for the building by Messrs. Barnard, Bishop and Barnard: the furniture was principally supplied by Messrs. Norman and Son, of Great Yarmouth: the hall was opened in state by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, on Wednesday the 1st day of June 1883, when a magnificent déjeuner was given.

The Tol-House.—Since the erection of the New Town Hall, and the transference of prisoners to the gaol at Norwich, the old Tol-house has become useless: the front portion of it, however, is an unusually interesting piece of architecture, containing two of the most beautiful Early English doors that remain to us, and the lower part forming the ancient gaol, which ought most certainly to be preserved as a specimen of what gaols were in early days. The corporation, having regard simply to finance, proposed to sell the whole site and buildings, but on consideration they willingly arranged upon certain conditions to secure the preservation of all the ancient part of the building, which is accordingly let on lease to a corporate body, the Mayor and the Vicar, with others added from time to time, who will preserve, as long as possible, one of the most interesting relics in this, to the Antiquary, most interesting town. The report of Mr. Loftus Brock and Messrs. Bottle and Olley, joint architects, states that a sum of about £1,200 will be required to restore the building and erect certain necessary adjuncts, and it is hoped that archaeologists generally will respond to the appeal that has been made.

The Royal Assembly and Reading Rooms, adjoining the Victoria Esplanade, were erected by a public company in 1863, from a design by Mr. H. H. Collins, of London: the total cost was £5,000: they are now the property of Mr. William Batchelor, of Norwich.

The corn market is held on the Hall quay.

The market days are wednesday and saturday. The fairs are held on Shrove monday and tuesday, and on Easter friday and saturday.

The Custom House, on the Quay, is a large and handsome building.

The Bath House (to which has been added a comfortable family hotel), situate in the centre of Marine drive, is held on lease from the corporation by the executors of the late Mr. Samuel Walker Bly, for a term of 500 years from September, 1759, with a covenant that no other baths shall be erected on the corporation waste lands: it was rebuilt and enlarged in 1836, and fitted with baths of modern construction, and the bathing accommodation has since been extended from time to time to keep pace with the requirements of this rapidly improving town.

There are several small docks or basins belonging to the shipbuilders, one of which will take a 500-ton ship.

The first workhouse at Yarmouth was established, through the instrumentality of Mr. Owner, on a part of the site of the ancient hospital of St. Mary. All the old buildings were demolished in 1842, when the present school-rooms, with residences for the master and mistress, were erected. The present workhouse was built and opened in 1838, costing

£7,000: it stands on the North Denes: when first erected it stood open to the Denes, and was built to hold 400 inmates. Land has since been granted on lease by the corporation, and a substantial brick and stone wall has been built on three sides, enclosing an area of about eight acres, including that on which the house stands. The house itself has also been enlarged by the addition of infirmaries, lunatic wards, and other buildings, so that at the present time the workhouse is capable of holding 500 inmates and its staff of officers. The Board of Guardians consists of 16 members, who hold their board meetings fortnightly at the Middle-gate Hall.

The Public Library, South quay, was established in 1802 by a number of shareholders and yearly subscribers; it now possesses a valuable collection of about 14,000 volumes of all classes of literature and on all subjects of general interest, and among them are 40 large folios of the Public Records, printed by Government and deposited here for public use in 1825 including the great Domesday Book of 1800; the new edition of 1875 has since been added. The library room is 45 feet long by 22 feet 6 inches wide. The reading room, which is 30 feet by 24 feet, is open to all subscribers, and is well supplied with the best London and local daily and weekly newspapers and the leading magazines of the day.

The Theatre Royal was erected in 1778, and was remodelled in 1820, and is capable of seating 800.

The Gaiety Theatre, in Victoria road, is a structure of wood, and was erected in 1881, and will seat about 1,800.

Telegraph offices are at Regent street, Marine parade (near the Norfolk hotel), Fish Wharf (during the fishing season), and at Gorleston, and communicate with all parts of the world.

One of the chief ornaments of the town is the conspicuous column erected on the South Denes by county subscription in 1817, to commemorate Admiral Lord Nelson: it is a fine pillar, of the Doric order, with fluted shaft, and its extreme height is 144 feet: the summit is reached by 270 steps in the interior, and the views from it are varied and extensive: the roof of the shaft is supported by caryatides, and these are surmounted by a ball and figure of Britannia holding in her hands a trident and a laurel branch.

The Yarmouth Hospital and Dispensary was founded in 1838, and contains 30 beds.

The Sailors' Home a noble edifice of red and white brick situated on the Marine parade, was erected in 1860 at a cost of about £2,000, and is a refuge for the many shipwrecked seamen who are annually landed from the wrecks occurring on this dangerous part of our coast: since its establishment 5,717 such persons rescued from shipwreck have been received: there are baths and other appliances for the restoration of the apparently drowned: it contains also a reading-room, library and small museum for the use and benefit of sea-faring persons; it is supported principally by voluntary contributions; Henry Edward Buxton esq. is the honorary treasurer, and Mr. George Thomas Watson, secretary.

The Walrond Memorial Smack Boys' Home and Fishermen's Institute, on the Ballast quay, was erected in 1875: it contains all the necessary appliances for securing the comfort and accommodation of smack boys when ashore: the buildings are of a Gothic character, freely treated, and contain office, dining room, reading-room, large room for meetings, dormitories on the separate bunk system, rooms for the manager and the necessary offices: it will accommodate 33 boys, each having a separate bed and apartment.

The Boys' Home, in Belfort place, was founded in 1870, for the purpose of feeding, clothing and bringing up destitute children, giving them the advantages of a family in every respect: it is unsectarian, the only qualification being that the boys are poor and without friends: it is supported by voluntary contributions and the boys' own industry.

Yarmouth is the headquarters of the Norfolk regiment (Regimental district No. 9): the barracks are at Southtown.

The Naval Hospital, situate at the southern extremity of the town, is now occupied as a Naval Lunatic Asylum, it being the only one in the kingdom, and is open daily for visitors: the inmates consist of 40 officers of all ranks and 160 seamen and marines, making a total of 200. Further south is the depot for the 4th battalion Norfolk regiment (2nd Norfolk Militia) and Prince of Wales' Own Norfolk Artillery Militia: it was erected in 1850. There are two corps of volunteers, one artillery and the other rifles: the butts are on the North Denes. The Drill Hall of the rifle volunteers was erected in 1867, on St. Peter's plain and covers a space of ground 147 feet in length by 65 feet in width: the south elevation, which is the principal front, presents a picturesque appearance: the large hall is roofed in one span with elliptic ribs, and is lighted chiefly by a skylight at the apex of the roof; the ribs and trusses of the roof are stained brown with stencilled patterns and edgings in white and gold, and the general effect is very good.

The Volunteer Artillery Drill hall, built in 1881, is 66 feet long and 35 feet wide.

The trade of Yarmouth is in the supply of the towns on the rivers, which are navigated by wherries and lighters. During the year ending March 25th, 1882, 87,540 tons of coals were imported, the port and haven dues upon which were £1,459; 147,688 quarters of corn and seed were imported and exported, the port and haven dues upon which were £923 1s. There has been of late years a large increase in vessels of 150 tons and upwards, the tonnage of which, during the year, was 80,214; vessels of smaller size amounted to 87,649 tons; the dues on the two classes of vessels amounting to £3,100 19s. 3d.; the dues upon fishing vessels were £2,527 13s. 4d.; the total amount of collection of port and haven dues was £11,319 17s. 10d. Barley is the chief article of export. There are numerous and very extensive malting-houses in Yarmouth and its neighbourhood, belonging to Messrs. E. Lacon and Sons and to the metropolitan brewers and others, which afford employment for a large number of hands. The town is a great centre of the fishing trade; the herring fishery, for which Yarmouth is so highly and justly celebrated, employs upwards of 800 first-class snacks of 15 tons and upwards, carrying from 6 men each; and a somewhat larger number of vessels of smaller size, whilst a very large number of persons, both men and women, are employed on shore in salting and curing the fish: those called "red herrings" being first cured with salt and afterwards dried with the smoke of a wood fire: the produce is equal to one-fifth of the entire return of the herring fisheries throughout the kingdom, the number taken being reckoned by "lasts," each last consisting of about 13,000 herrings; from September to the end of November is the time for herring fishing; there are also fisheries for mackerel, cod, sprats, turbot, soles, skate, whiting, eels, and shrimps. A large portion of this produce is sent to London, Manchester, Birmingham and other distant towns. The Fish Wharf, on the South Denes (commenced April 20th, 1867, opened February, 1869) is 2,251 feet in length, with shed 750 feet long and 40 feet wide: the roof rests on 148 iron columns, about 9 feet high in front, and 7 feet in the rear; the cost was about £23,000: on the east side are fish salesmen's offices, and at the rear of the market a series of curing houses and yards. Ship and boat building employ many hands, and vessels of 460 tons are built here. There are several rope and twine and trawl net manufactories. The silk crape works belonging to Messrs. Grout and Co., erected in 1818, give employment to nearly 1,000 operatives of both sexes.

There are steam packets to and from London, Hull, and Newcastle, for passengers and goods, and the Scotch steam packets pass through Yarmouth Roads and occasionally land and embark passengers.

The Aquarium, the lower storey of which was built in 1876, has now been completed on a somewhat modified yet considerable scale: it comprises a large hall for entertainments about 115 feet by 60 feet, with spacious promenade galleries on the upper floor; the hall at the south end has a large and well constructed stage, provided with the most modern appliances, having a depth of nearly 40 feet and a width of about 50 feet, the proscenium opening being 33 feet wide: on each side of the hall are the Aquarium tanks: the main entrances are to the south, the corridors, and the staircases to galleries being of ample width, with cloak and retiring rooms adjoining: large doors at the north end of the large hall open on to the spacious north corridor, the refreshment department and the lavatories being on the opposite side of the corridor: there are public entrances at each end of this corridor and a broad staircase at the west end leading to the minor hall on the upper floor, which is approached by a spacious lobby, and is about 80 feet long by 38 feet wide, with gallery at west end: large doors on south side of minor hall open on to the promenade gallery of large hall and to east terrace: to the north of minor hall are lavatories and retiring rooms, and also a bar about 40 feet by 20 feet with various smaller rooms: the south front is entirely new and forms an imposing elevation in the Italian style, the material of which it is built is buffa terra cotta: this front has also a projecting ornamental iron verandah and balcony: the remaining elevations are chiefly of brick with moulded brick or stone dressings, the old ground floor being retained: the expenditure incurred in completing the building was about £10,000: the architects are Messrs. Bottle and Olley.

Races take place on the South Denes, in August. There is also a yearly regatta, in the roadstead, and another on Breydon Water, near Burgh Castle.

Among other curiosities are the remains of the town walls, gates and towers. The Star Hotel contains some curious carvings and pendant ceilings: and No. 4, South quay (the residence of Mr. Samuel Aldred, built in 1596), contains some fine Elizabethan rooms, in one of which, according to tradition, the death of Charles I. was determined on: it belongs to the Carter family, and a granddaughter of Oliver Cromwell resided in it. In the neighbourhood of Yarmouth is the site of the Roman camp at Burgh, called Garianonum, one of the most perfect and considerable of such remains in Great Britain; and the ruins of Caister Castle, erected by the renowned Sir John Fastolf in the fifteenth century; also some curious parish churches.

The parish comprises 1,510 acres; rateable value, £120,545; the population of the parish in 1881 was 37,313, and of the borough, 1871, was 41,819, and in 1881, 46,159,—viz., Great Yarmouth, 37,151; Gorleston and Southtown, 9,008; Cogholt Island is included with the return for Great Yarmouth.

For descriptions of GORLESTON, SOUTHTOWN and COGHOLT ISLAND, see "Suffolk Directory."

Parish Clerk, Edward John Lupson, Church plain.

YAXHAM is a parish, village and station on the Wymondham and Dereham railway, 2 miles south from East Dereham, in the Southern division of the county, Mitford hundred, Mitford and Launditch union, East Dereham county court district, rural deanery of Hingham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Peter is a structure of flint, with stone dressings, and consists of chancel, nave, south aisle and round tower, the base of the latter, with the tower arch, is of Early Norman date; the building, with this exception, is of Decorated workmanship, with Perpendicular insertions: its very beautiful octagonal font is Perpendicular; a copy taken from it may be seen in Cromer church: the windows of this church have been enriched with coloured glass by the landed proprietors of the parish and by others, and the whole is carefully kept. The register dates from the year 1686. The living is a rectory, yearly value £500, with residence and 36 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Rev. William Cowper Johnson M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, Rector of Northwold, hon. canon of Norwich cathedral, and is held by the Rev. William Cowper Johnson, jun. M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here is a Congregational chapel, in connection with Mattishall. The doles belonging to the poor of Yaxham are as follows:—

Hardy's gift, per annum, 3s. 4d.; Wood's, 10s.; Mountain's Dole, £1 6s.; Burr's Dole, 6s.; total, £2 5s. 4d. The only land belonging to the poor is 3r. 27p. yearly rent £1 12s. 6d.; and the fuel allotment of 20 acres, 13 of which are rented for grazing purposes, which yields a yearly rent of £20: the rent of the remaining lands, about 7 acres, is carried to the churchwardens' account, and applied to the same purposes as the church rate formerly was. Sir W. R. Clayton bart. is lord of the manor. Henry Collison esq. and John Marcon esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is heavy and very productive; subsoil, clay and brick earth. The chief crops are wheat, barley, roots and hay. The area is 1,596 acres; rateable value, £3,600; and the population in 1881 was 489.

Sexton, Henry Baxter.

POST OFFICE.—Henry Baxter, receiver. Letters received through East Dereham arrive at 7 a.m. and are despatched at 6 p.m. East Dereham is the nearest money order telegraph office

There is a National school, built in 1843 & enlarged in 1850. Miss Hutton, mistress
Railway Station, Henry Stokes, collector

YELVERTON is a village and parish 5 miles south-east from Norwich and 4 south-east from Trowse station, in the Southern division of the county, Henstead hundred, Loddon and Clavering union, county court district of Norwich, rural deanery of Brooke, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of the Virgin Mary is a handsome building of flint, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle and porch, with a square tower containing 3 bells: there are fragments of ancient stained windows. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, with that of Alington annexed, joint yearly value £408 from commuted tithe rent-charge, with 16 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor and held since 1865 by the Rev. Charles Robert Ferguson-Davie M.A. of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and J.P. Norfolk. The fuel allotment of 13 acres produces £32 yearly, and Rant's charity of 21 acres, £30 yearly; these amounts are equally divided between Yelverton and Alington. The Earl of Rosebery is lord of the manor: the land is owned by various persons. The soil is sandy loam; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and turnips. The area is 539 acres; rateable value. £993; and the population in 1881 was 85.
